Huber Outlines Convention Planks

STATE LIQUOR CONTROL PART OF PLATFORM

Progressives Also Favor Varied Program for Ending Depression
ASK BIG RELIEF FUND
Old Progressive Principles Also Are Embodied in Party's Proposals

Madison—(AP)—The platform of the LaFollette Republican convention candidates, enlarged by new planks urging state liquor control and a varied program for meeting the depression was announced today by Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber, campaign manager.

Pledging support to U. S. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, for the presidential nomination the document which the Progressives propose to read on the floor of the Republican national convention in June carried these new recommendations which were not in previous delegate platforms:

Creation of an economic council by the national government to stabilize industry; establishment of unemployment reserves and a system of employment exchanges; and a long time planning of public works.

An appropriation of $375,000,000 to states and local governments to meet unemployment relief burdens.

Amendment of the federal reserve act to insure that the credit facilities of the federal reserve system shall be used for the benefit of farmers, merchants, manufacturers, home builders and for other constructive purposes.

Legislation to end monopoly control of credit and banking resources through chain or group banking and similar methods.

Amendment of the Volstead act to allow each state to define what shall be deemed intoxicating liquor within its borders. The present system of national prohibition, this plank said, "has given rise to an intolerable situation."

Most of the seven Progressive candidates for delegate at large and the 20 district delegates assembled at the capital yesterday to approve the platform. Senators LaFollette and John J. Blaine were not present. They will return to Wisconsin within a short time to participate in the campaign which the Progressives now have underway.

The platform includes a number of old Progressive principles read in previous conventions. They include: Enactment of legislation embodying the equalization fee or debenture principles to give the farmer control of his crop surpluses.

Criticism of the foreign policy and the treaty of Versailles, opposition to alliances which would commit the country to maintenance of the treaty and opposition to the backing of foreign investments promoted by American capital.

Public Ownership
Operation by the federal government of electric plants and transmission lines at Muscle Shoals, Boulder dam and other points "to afford a real test of public ownership and to serve as a check upon the extortionate rates charged by private utilities."

NEW LINDBERGH THEORY BLASTED

Lightfoot Servants Not Believed Involved — Culbertsons Threatened

New York—(AP)—Ely Culbertson, bridge expert, has placed special guards over his two children because of letters threatening to kidnap them. The children are Fifi, 3, and Bruce, 2, who is called "Jump Bid," by his parents.

Their governess wears a police whistle so she can give an alarm if kidnapers appear.

New York—(AP)—Another advertisement of the "Jafsie" series, which some newspapers have speculated might have some connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnappings and arrangements for the child's return for ransom, appeared in a morning paper today.

"I accept," the advertisement, included in the classification of "public notices," read. "Money is ready. You know they won't let me deliver without getting the package. Let's make it some sort of C. O. D. transaction. Come. You know you can trust Jafsie."

Hopewell, N. J.—(AP)—The latest theory in the Lindbergh baby kidnap mystery fell apart today.

For several days police from the Lindbergh home have been investigating the story of Mr. and Mrs. C. Leonardo Lightfoot, of Franklin Park, who told of their foreign servants leaving the day after the kidnapping. The Lightfoots reported also that wood similar to that used in the kidnappers' ladder was missing from their home, as was a chisel like the one found beneath the Lindbergh nursery window.

Today the Lightfoots found the chisel, and police acknowledged they were just about back where they started on the night of March 2 when the baby was stolen.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New York State Police, said today.

KELLEY QUILTS TAX BODY TO TAKE NEW POST

Commissioner to Become Executive Director of Taxpayers' Alliance

Madison—(AP)—Edward L. Kelley of Manitowoc, member of the state tax commission for three years, today sent his resignation to Governor LaFollette, effective April 1. He will become executive director of the Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance with headquarters in Madison.

Mr. Kelley was appointed to the commission for a eight year term by Gov. Walter Kohler. He served as chairman of the commission last year.

In a statement to the governor, accompanying the resignation, Mr. Kelley said that his action was entirely voluntary and that he wished to express appreciation for the support that had been given him during his tenure of office.

"In accepting the position as executive director of the Wisconsin Taxpayers' alliance, I feel that I have an unusual opportunity of accomplishing work of great public service," Mr. Kelley said.

"The average citizen is intensely interested today in learning the unbiased facts of taxation. Mounting governmental expenditures have thrown a staggering burden upon the taxpayer which with the general reduction in wages and earning power in both industry and agriculture, and the decline in property valuations, has reached the point of confiscation. The taxpayer wants to know the facts of taxation and why taxes cannot be materially reduced."

"The program of the Wisconsin Taxpayers' alliance which is to be a prominent fact-finding body calls for unbiased analysis of both existing and proposed governmental expenditures. This work will help solve state and municipal taxation problems."

"Similar organization in other states has been operating very successfully for a number of years," Mr. Kelley was born and reared at Manitowoc and was graduated from the law school of the University of Wisconsin in 1916. He practiced law in Manitowoc prior to his appointment to the state commission. He is a member of the National Tax association.

Commenting on the resignation, J. M. Conway of Green Bay, president of the alliance, said that Kelley is especially qualified for the new position.

"He is a national authority on tax matters, decisions of his office having received nationwide attention," Conway said. "He is also well known as a lecturer and author of many articles on the subject of taxation."

THE program of the Wisconsin Taxpayers' alliance which is to be a prominent fact-finding body calls for unbiased analysis of both existing and proposed governmental expenditures. This work will help solve state and municipal taxation problems.

Tax Returns Fall Off In 1st Reports

Washington—(AP)—Payments of income tax on March 15 incomes in 1931 amounted to $12,648,765 as compared with $18,100,362 received on the same date a year ago.

The payments made the total for the month $44,701,384 and for the fiscal year $702,822,726.

For the same number of days in March last year income tax payments amounted to $58,124,904 and for the fiscal year $1,229,555,929.

The receipts this year are not strictly comparable to those received on the first day last year. The deposits are now included in the figures on the day of deposit whereas the collections previously were included on the following day.

The receipts generally credited to the fifteenth of the month were those which have dribbled in ahead of the last minute rush. It is generally the third or fourth day after the final filing date before the funds actually show on the treasury statement.

The treasury statement for March 15 showed $1,062,728,150 was received from sale of securities and $598,418,620 paid out to retire maturing obligations.

The government had a deficit of $1,871,229,155. Receipts from all sources amounted to $1,413,113,103 and expenditures totaled $3,284,342,258 for the fiscal year to date.

The decrease in tax collections on the fifteenth as compared with a year ago is expected by treasury officials to become greater as returns are received.

For March last year the treasury collected $334,559,214 as compared with $559,503,703 the year before.

The drop in income tax, however, has been so sharp this year that officials do not expect the total collections for March will amount to more than $175,000,000.

IMMIGRATION PLAN RECEIVES APPROVAL
Committee Puts O. K. on Proposal to Limit Western Hemisphere Quotas

Washington—(AP)—The Moore committee today approved a resolution to restrict immigration quotas to 10 per cent of their present number, and to place the countries of the western hemisphere on a quota basis, with restriction to 10 per cent of visas issued during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, was reported favorably today by the house immigration committee.

The resolution would provide that the minimum quota of any country should be 100.

OPPOSE PLAN TO IMPROVE WOLF RIVER

Further Development Not Feasible Now, Major Brown Finds

Washington—(AP)—Finding that the further development of water power on the Wolf river would not be commercially feasible at this time, and that the present river channel is adequate for commerce, Major General Lytle Brown, chief of engineers of the war department, today submitted a report to congress advising against government improvement of the Wolf river.

Brown stated that the river was subject to floods and that 72,000 acres can be protected by levees. He added, however, that the cost of leveeing would be high in proportion to the area benefited and would result in a more rapid runoff of the flood waters which would further aggravate the flood situation on Lake Winnebago and the lower Fox river.

Survey Recommended
Recommendation has been submitted to congress that a survey be authorized with a view to formulating a plan for controlling floods on the Fox river and its tributaries. This survey, if authorized by congress, will deal with the flood situation on the Wolf river as a part of the Fox river system, General Brown said.

In recommending against the proposal to deepen the Wolf river channel from its mouth to New London to a depth of four feet and width of a hundred feet, Brown said there was no record of commerce on Wolf river in 1929 and 1930 and the average commerce for the past 12 years has been but 3,420 tons annually. He said that the district engineer finds no grounds for participating in the development of commerce above Fremont and reports that only small and irregular commerce is to be expected below that point.

He said that small power plants with a capacity of about 7,400 horsepower were installed in the river and further development would not be practical.

GAS BOMBS USED TO CURB STRIKING MINERS
Athens, Ohio—(AP)—Gas bombs were used to quell a bombing crowd of 500 striking miners who sought to storm the Black Diamond Coal company's mine at Lathrop, near here this morning.

The miners rallied to object to yesterday's reopening of the mine when 60 diggers went to work against protests of 7,000 striking miners.

Sheriff Wayne Winzert, County Prosecutor John Dolan and three deputies confronted the men marching toward the mine at a bridge.

When demonstrations yelled across the bridge failed to halt the marchers, the officers threw gas bombs.

REPORT FAKE VOTES CAST IN ANN ARBOR AT STUDENT POLLS
Ann Arbor, Mich.—(AP)—The student council at University of Michigan is investigating charges of election irregularities made last night with the discovery that more than 100 ballots were fraudulently cast in the vote for sophomore members of the court yesterday.

The first complaint that a vote had not been regular came when 53 ballots were found on a table where the vote was being tabulated, all marked for the same candidates and apparently with the same pen. Then it was discovered that in other tables, which had been stuffed with ballots, the names of candidates were either written or folded together and all marked the same.

About 1,100 votes were cast in the election.

Ohio Sends Wet Delegates To Republican Conclave; Governor For Referendum

Favors Poll

Cleveland—(AP)—Two surprising anti-prohibition developments in Ohio, with possibly far-reaching reverberations, entered the forefront of national politics today.

In Cleveland, Maurice Maschke, national Republican committeeman, disclosed that for the first time since prohibition, a majority of Ohio's delegation to the Republican national convention will be known to be wet.

At Columbus, the Democratic Gov. George White, who was listed by the Anti-Saloon league as a friend of prohibition when elected two years ago, was on record today as favoring a referendum on the 18th amendment.

Gov. White, the state's "favorite son" for the Democratic presidential nomination, made his referendum declaration for the first time, at a regional conference of the Women's Christian Temperance union at Columbus last night.

Asserting his belief that prohibition supporters had erred in opposing a popular vote, the governor startled the dry assemblage with the statement that he favored re-submission if for no other reason than to refute claims that the liquor laws were forced through during the World War when thousands of citizens were overseas.

Semi-suppressed "nays" greeted the remarks of the gray-haired chief executive who started his career as a gold-digger in the Klondike, but he continued: "It is the right of my record to at least make these suggestions for your careful consideration."

Declaring that the W. C. T. U. and the Anti-Saloon league were "making a mistake" in their battle against a referendum, the governor told the women that prohibition had failed to meet the expectations of

CONSENT DECREE IN HIGH COURT AGAIN

Meat Packers Attempting to Get Permission for Modification

Washington—(AP)—The 11-year-old packers' consent decree today made its second bow before the supreme court.

This time counsel for meat packers sought permission to modify the decree to allow them to handle other than meat products. The decree restricts their activities to meats. The modification was opposed by the American and National Wholesale Grocers' associations.

After the supreme court had held the decree valid, two of the principal packing companies, Swift and Company and Armour and Company, sought permission of the District of Columbia Supreme court to handle certain other foods.

SENATOR REED SAYS NO TRUTH IN NEWS STORY

Pennsylvanian Replies to Robinson's Warning Against Revision

Washington—(AP)—A Democratic attack in the senate today against revision of the British war debt owed to America brought a denial from Senator Reed (R. Pa.), on behalf of President Hoover that the subject was even under consideration.

Senator Reed specified that it is a "question had not been discussed" with Ambassador Mellon, who is about to sail for his London post.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, had quoted from a newspaper story published here today saying that Mellon was favorably inclined for revision of the British debt. He warned that any revision would be very carefully considered by congress.

After Senator Connally (D. Texas) challenged the administration to state its position, Senator Reed, who had just returned to the floor, said:

"I am authorized to say that there is not a word of truth in the newspaper article."

Connally demanded to know of Reed by whom he was authorized to speak.

The senator replied "by the president."

"The subject of debt negotiations has not even been discussed with Mr. Mellon," he added.

Reed himself recently expressed favor toward modification of England's war debt.

Published at Capital
The Washington Post today published the story that Mr. Mellon would open negotiations in that direction upon assuming his new post. The Democratic speakers described the post as "the administration gazette."

Senator Robinson immediately plunged into a second discussion of the article, which he said did not make the statement Mr. Mellon had said he was instructed to open negotiations but had "involved the administration by implication."

"Is the senator prepared to state that Mr. Mellon will not immediately or subsequently begin the negotiations suggested?" the Democratic leader inquired.

"Mr. Mellon emphatically will not have negotiations for reconsideration of this debt," Reed replied. "It is absolutely and unqualifiedly untrue. There is no expectation that he will at this time or any other time open up such negotiations."

De Valera Announces Plan For Union Of North And South Ireland

DAY OF DOUBLE IMPORTANCE TO ERIN'S PEOPLE

St. Patrick Landed in Ireland 1,500 Years Ago —People Celebrate

BY MICHAEL ROONEY
Associated Press Staff Correspondent
DUBLIN, (AP)—The wearing of the green had a double significance in Ireland today: It was the 1,500th anniversary of St. Patrick's landing and the north and south of Ireland.
Eamon de Valera, new president of the Free State, announced last night on the eve of St. Patrick's day celebrations, a four-point program for his administration, one point of which was an eventual merger of the Free State and Ulster governments, age-old division of Irish affairs.
The center of the day's ceremonies in honor of St. Patrick today was at Saul, in County Down, where a statue of the saint is to be erected immediately on the mountain of Slieve Donard, 400 feet above the shore where he landed in 432 A. D. to begin his missionary work.
Huge Altar Planned
There is also to be a great altar on the site, which commands a magnificent view of the Irish sea and the Mourne mountains. The statue will be visible for many miles, looking toward memories of Slieve Donard on the south, Strangford Lough and even far-away Slieve Donard in County Antrim, on the north.
The ancient custom of "drowning the shamrock" was restricted today to homes only. The public houses were closed again this year, as they have been on St. Patrick's day for many years.
"I hope to see the unnatural boundaries between north and south Ireland broken down," President de Valera said, explaining his new governmental program. He hoped, he said, to see the office of governor-general of Ireland merged in time to the office of president of the Irish republic.
He pointed out that even on grounds of economy such a move was necessary, in his opinion. "Ireland has to support two prime ministers," he said, "and two ministers of every kind, apart from the great inconvenience because of the custom. We must have a united Ireland."
One of the first acts of the new Dail Eirann, he said, would be to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British king. The oath, he said, is "not obligatory according to the terms of the treaty of 10 years ago with England, following which the Free State was formed."
"It is my intention," he added, "not to make another payment (of the land annuities) to Great Britain, and until any negotiations can take place the onus is on the British government to present its case for the annuities."
Pope Pius XI bestowed the apostolic blessing on the Irish people in a message to Presidialera, signed by the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Pacelli. The message was in reply

EVANGELIST REACTING TO BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Glendale, Calif.—(AP)—Reported "reacting normally to the transfusions," Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, was confined to a hospital here today after having received a pint of blood to combat a condition described by her physician as secondary anemia. He said it was an ailment resulting from complete exhaustion.
The blood donor was Lester J. Haye, assistant Y. M. C. A. secretary. The evangelist's husband, David Hutton, had offered to submit to the transfusion, but physicians found his blood was not of the special type needed.
Mrs. Hutton collapsed last Sunday in the pulpit of Angelus temple, of which she is pastor. Her physical condition was said to have resulted from her failure to take a complete rest a year ago when she suffered a nervous breakdown.

to one from de Valera expressing the hope that cordial relations between Ireland and the Vatican might continue. The pope, Cardinal Pacelli said, was extremely pleased to receive President de Valera's message.
The god was broken for the statue of St. Patrick today at Saul in County Down, by Most Rev. Dr. MacGeaney, bishop of Down and Connor.

A fund of $250,000 is being collected for the memorial, by public subscription, and in the shadow of the statue will be erected a high altar where mass may be said for large outdoor congregations. Not far away, near Slieve Donard, is Patrick's captivity, another shrine to his memory will be erected also.
Today's ceremony followed a solemn high mass in Saul church. A solemn procession from the church to the monument site of the statue followed with half an hour later the blessing of the site and turning of the first sod by the bishop.
On an adjoining hill nearer Downpatrick St. Patrick erected his first church in Ireland, called Sabhal-Partraic, and made his first convert in the person of Dichu, chief of the locality.

St. Patrick was always deeply attached to Saul. He died there and after obsequies of twelve days his body was interred two miles away at Downpatrick.
At Saint Patrick's cathedral, Armagh, an adjoining hill nearer Downpatrick St. Patrick erected his first church in Ireland, called Sabhal-Partraic, and made his first convert in the person of Dichu, chief of the locality.

SCORN DE VALERA PLAN
Belfast, Northern Ireland—(AP)—Ulster newspapers expressed scorn today for the outline of policies announced by President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State, in which de Valera included a plan for bringing about a union of northern and southern Ireland.
"No one except de Valera believes," the Northern Whig said, "that the moment the oath (of allegiance) is abolished members of the Irish Republican army will voluntarily disband, leaving the Flannery government to the placid pursuit of a peaceful evolution."
The Belfast News Letter said de Valera "expects a series of miracles to occur" with the British government not only acquiescing in the Free State's retention of the land annuity payments, but disgorging $30,000,000 already paid, while "the political border which separates Ulster from the Free State is to disappear at the waving of some mysterious wand."

Life Sentences for Bandits

The four men who invaded the City National Bank of Clinton, Iowa before daybreak and waited to seize and bind 39 employees before the cashier who could open the vault, arrived, escaped with $106,000. A few hours later they were captured outside the city, and on the next day the four were sentenced to life imprisonment. The four are, left to right: Above, Clifford Edwards, 22; Earl Jeffries, 19. Below: Guy Edward Morris, 19, and Lester Stanley, 23. Edwards was a native of Clinton; the others came from Louisville, Ky.

Negro's Bullwhip Plays Part In Death Car Case

New York—(AP)—Everywhere Clarence goes, so does his bullwhip. The two are just-like-that.
"I been wearin' this yere bullwhip seventeen years, gold on eighteen," the Negro told Judge Fresco yesterday, "except when I sleep, and then I hangs him on a nail by the bed."
"But you are here to testify in a manslaughter case," the court explained. "The case of the People versus Yancy Carter. It is most unusual for a witness to testify with a bullwhip."
"You know the judge business," said Clarence, "but I know my bullwhip. Either he stays with me or I don't testify. I sat down in one of these witness chairs in 1924, and the judge let me keep my bullwhip. I contends that sets a precedent for bullwhips, or something."
"Perhaps," suggested the court, "a policeman could hold it for you."
"No, suh. Policemen don't know nothin' bout bullwhips."
"Or you could leave it on the table where you could see it."
"No, suh. This here bullwhip wouldn't like that none whatever. After 17 years, judge, you get attached to a bullwhip."
So Clarence and the bullwhip took the stand. It developed each had a part in the story.

Clarence said he saw Carter's car run down an automobile in which Anthony Mason, a passenger, was killed. Carter then drove away, pursued by Clarence and the bullwhip on the running board of another car. The Carter car finally was crowded to the curb.
"Carter tried to get out of his automobile and my bullwhip he go cra-a-ck! So Carter he don't like that and hops back in. Some friends of his come along, and the bullwhip he go cra-a-ck! Some more, and then fellows run fast. Hot dog! How them gen-mum run."
A jury convicted Carter in 15 minutes.

ORGANIZE UNIT FOR TEACHERS OF 3 COUNTIES

Mentors of Outagamie, Calumet and Winnebago Join Federation

Teachers in schools of Outagamie, Calumet and Winnebago counties have organized a local unit of the American Federation of Teachers. The new organization is known as the Tri-County Federation of Teachers, No. 240. The federation is one of several similar groups organized recently throughout Wisconsin. The parent organization, the American Federation of Teachers is a national institution of class room teachers with headquarters in Chicago, Ill.

Officers of the local unit are: R. L. Swanson, mathematics teacher at Wilson Junior high school, president; Clyde Cavert, electrical instructor at the vocational school, first vice president; Miss Lillian Kohn, teacher at Kimberly graded school, second vice president; J. E. Roberts, principal of Kimberly high school, recording and corresponding secretary; and Walter Fox, McKinley Junior high school, treasurer and financial secretary.

The federation is a professional organization whose object is to bring class room teachers of the three counties into relation of mutual assistance and cooperation; to raise the standard of the teaching profession by securing the conditions essential to the best professional service, and to bring about such a democratization of the schools as will enable them to better equip their pupils to take their places in the industrial, social and political life of the community.
Membership in this organization is restricted to class room teachers with at least one year of experience. Regular meetings are held on the second Tuesday of each month.
During the past few months teachers in Milwaukee public and vocational schools, Green Bay and Madison public schools and the University of Wisconsin also organized similar units. The movement is gaining impetus throughout the state.

INDIANA CAR HITS WIG-WAG SIGNAL

An automobile owned and driven by James Annand, Indianapolis, Ind., was damaged about 11:30 Wednesday evening when it crashed into the wig-wag signal on the west side of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad crossing on W. College-ave. The front part of the car was damaged, and the guard rail of the signal was wrecked.

LESLIE FENTON TO WED ANN DVORAK OF FILMS

Hollywood—(AP)—Friends of Ann Dvorak, who recently was signed for leading roles by Warner Brothers Film studios, and Leslie Fenton, also of the screen, said the couple planned to go by airplane to Yuma, Ariz., to be married this afternoon.
Miss Dvorak recently was selected to lead in "Central Park," which is to be filmed in New York city. Fenton is well known as one of the younger actors in Hollywood, his performance in "What Price Glory?" having been generally acclaimed.

HINDENBURG RESORT GAVE MAJORITY TO RIVAL IN ELECTION

Dietschzell, Bavaria—(AP)—Citizens of this community, favorite summer resort of President Paul von Hindenburg, said they saw a deep dark plot today in the fact that Adolf Hitler carried the town in the presidential election last Sunday.
Hitler got 228 votes and von Hindenburg 157, in spite of the fact that the veteran president is a popular annual guest.

Hitler, the irate citizens said, carried the town only because his campaign managers "planted" a large group of Hitlerites here as excursionists over the election weekend without suspicion on the part of the villagers.
The intent, they said, was to hurt the president's feelings.

FIND NO TRACE OF 2 STUDENTS

Harvard Youths Missing Since Jan. 31—No Clue to Whereabouts

Boston—(AP)—Nearly seven weeks ago, two young men, Floyd J. Stewart and Nathaniel E. Jones, students in good standing at the Harvard School of Business Administration, disappeared from their regular lodgings in Cambridge.

Since 4:50 a. m., Jan. 31, not a single real clue has been discovered to account for their disappearance or indicate where they went. An intense police search has failed to give even a hint of their fate.

Hopes of finding them now hinge on the discovery of Jones' light convertible coupe, but that vanished with the young men.
The two young men are members of families of wealth and position. Stewart's father is James Josiah Stewart of Garden City, Kas., high official of a utilities holding company and prominent in banking circles. Jones' father is Nathaniel E. Jones, president of a widely known firm of Boston silk merchants who makes his home in Billerica, Mass.
Stewart and Jones were both 23 years old, considered reliable, level-headed and conservative by those who knew them.

Mid-year examinations had just been concluded. The young men had passed them and were excused from the usual study requirements during the succeeding week. They had been out with friends on the night before their disappearance, but apparently had gone to their separate rooms in the dormitories. Shortly before 5 a. m., Jones was reported to have called Stewart from bed. Stewart was said to have slipped outer clothing over his pajamas and left with his friend. That was the last seen of them. It was believed the pair had less than $40 between them.

1ST NATIONAL BANK NAMED DEPOSITORY

In compliance with chapter 34 of the Wisconsin statutes, the city water commission in session at the city hall yesterday afternoon named the First National bank as depository for all public moneys coming into the hands of the commission treasurer.
The commission also opened bids on service trenching for the coming season, but decided to defer action until the next meeting in April.

Recall Miracles Today Of Ireland's Patron Saint

With shamrocks and clay pipes the modern conception of St. Patrick's day, few minds go back to the historic story of the fire lighted by St. Patrick in Ireland 1,500 years ago, when this holy man, now the patron saint of Ireland, landed on shores of that country. Ireland, of course, will always recall his victories over the heathen, and the miracles performed by him.

Many are the miracles they tell of him. Everyone knows how he drove out the snakes by beating a drum which an angel mended, when he knocked a hole in it, and of the blackthorn bush that flowered in midwinter because Patrick took refuge under it. Today, no matter what the weather, the blackthorn blooms on this day. On Eagle mountain, where Patrick fasted for 40 days and 40 nights, demons came in the shape of great birds of prey, but when he rang his sweet-toned bell they were afraid, and when he cast it among them they left him in peace. The shamrock was used by St. Patrick when he pleaded with King Leoghaire to accept the true faith. With the triple leaves of a shamrock which he had plucked by the wayside he explained the Trinity from the one stem.

Report Carol Wants Helen In Rumania

Florence, Italy—(AP)—King Carol of Rumania, was reported here today to be trying to effect a reconciliation with his divorced former wife, Princess Helen, through a secret emissary, General Candesco.
The general left last night after spending two days here. His mission was understood to have been ostensibly to arrange a money allowance for the former queen, who recently arranged to buy a $60,000 villa but was obliged to cancel the arrangement when the Rumanian parliament rejected an appropriation proposed by King Carol.
From Paris General Candesco recently was reported as trying to effect a reconciliation between Carol and his younger brother, Prince Nicholas, who was exiled from Rumania after the latter refused to accede to an annulment of his marriage with Mme. Jana Lucia Delist, a commoner.
These efforts were construed by courtiers as part of a plan to strengthen Carol's position by re-establishing the good relations of the entire royal family.

PRIM WARNS AGAINST USE OF GUNS IN CITY

Warnings are being issued by Police Chief George T. Prim against the shooting of rifles in the city limits. Numerous complaints are being received from various parts of the city that boys with .22 calibre rifles are shooting at random, endangering the lives of people and causing destruction of property, Chief Prim stated. Several windows in St. Paul Lutheran parochial school were smashed from .22 calibre bullets a few days ago, and several windows in Appleton high school have suffered a similar fate, he stated.

BELIEVE BABY BOND DRIVE WILL RESTORE PUBLIC CONFIDENCE

See Market for Other Securities of U. S. Government

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press)
New York—Once the hoarders have been reassured to the extent of digging up the gold buried in the back yard, taking out the bills hidden behind the clock and exchanging both for some of Uncle Sam's new baby bonds, perhaps they may be persuaded to go a little farther and consider other inviting opportunities in United States government obligations. The new bonds have one advantage and only one over the old. They are redeemable at the holder's option after sixty days. That makes them almost the equivalent of cash and insures a market price of par.

The longer term obligations fluctuate over a considerable range and there is no certainty that the buying of any one of them today can sell in two months hence for what he paid. But that works both ways. It is just as possible that government bonds will advance in market price as that they will decline and a speculative profit is just as probable as a speculative loss.

Of course, a hoarder doesn't want to speculate. He doesn't want to profit. All he is looking for is safety. He admits no hopes and harbors no fears. And yet when he buries coin he is staking everything on the proposition that the world will always use gold as the medium of exchange and when he hides bills he is relying on the government to keep its word and redeem the paper currency in gold on demand. Identically the same risk—if risk it be—is involved in the purchase of bonds of the United States. It seems impossible in a world of men not to take some chance somewhere, sometime, somehow.

The new bonds pay two per cent. The old at the market all yield more than two per cent. Some of them at this writing twice that rate. One is just as sure to be paid principal and interest as the other. For, assuming the liability of a market fluctuation, which may as well be favorable as unfavorable, the investor is paid two per cent more interest.

COMPLAIN AGAINST MONEY ORDER ERRORS

Complaints are being received from the postal administration of the Philippine Islands regarding errors in money orders issued in the United States for payment in that country, according to word received here from Washington, D. C., by postal officials. An error which most frequently occurs is the omission of the postmaster's name entirely or the failure of the issuing clerk to write his initials with pen and ink beneath the postmaster's name when entered with a rubber stamp, it was stated.

WISCONSIN PEOPLE IN SEATTLE FORM CLUB

The Wisconsin club of Seattle composed of former Badgers now living in Seattle, Wash., has been organized, according to word received here from Charles M. Baxter, president. The purpose of the club is to assist all former residents of Wisconsin now living in the state of Washington, to locate and keep in touch with former friends, to keep them informed of the progress and achievements of their native state, and to assist Wisconsin people who may travel in or settle in Washington.

There are approximately 10,000 former Wisconsin people in Seattle, it is said, and the ratio is even greater in other cities. Mr. Baxter says the club will send information to any Wisconsin person interested in Washington.

APPROVE STATE STAND ON WOMEN EMPLOYES

Fond du Lac—(AP)—Approval of the recent action of the state industrial commission refusing a Beaver Dam, Wis., industrial concern permission to employ women workers on night shifts was voted Tuesday by directors at a meeting of the state league of women voters.

The directors also sent a message to Senator Robert LaFollette, urging him to use his influence to bring the world court question to a vote in congress at an early date.

Another resolution adopted asked Senators LaFollette and Blaine to oppose the proposed reduction in the appropriation for the federal children's bureau. The reduction from $400,000 to $300,000 proposed by pending legislation, the resolution said, would be particularly harmful in the present economic circumstances and should be enacted only as a last resort.

TO THE LETTER

Operates Only One-Man Studio In Film Capital

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
(Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press)
Hollywood —(CMA)— Among the people who took pictures of Eddie Cantor unveiling a statue of himself here the other day was Ralph B. Staub who operates the only one-man motion picture studio in Hollywood. In the past eight years Staub had made more than 400 one reel short features. He writes his own stories and gags lines up the stars, acts as photographer, editor, director, property man, and producer, and when necessary supplies an explanatory talk in his own voice.

He has photographed nearly every premiere in Los Angeles and Hollywood since 1924. He has directed and photographed more stars than any other man in the picture industry although he has never made a picture longer than one reel, which is 20 feet. Occasionally since the advent of sound he has taken along with him an extra electrician or sound expert but for the most part Staub continues to be the complete works. His pictures are shown in theatres all over the country.

Among the big personalities of the screen at home, at work and at play is the specialty on which Staub concentrates. He has met and photographed every important movie actor since the silent era. With the talkies his work grew more difficult because when the stars can't think up bright remarks while working or playing Staub thinks up the remarks for them.

His favorite star is Mary Pickford. "During all my years of making star reels," he said today, "I have never found anyone more gracious than Miss Pickford. She is willing to cooperate even when it involves some trouble on her part. She is a very nice person to work with."

The longest work he has done was as a stand-in for a famous actor in a picture in a botanical garden. Miss Pickford was guest of honor and I wanted to get a picture of her planting that tree. Though she had a very bad cold she took a shot of her down into a hole and dug out the earth just as the tree was being planted. With some of her people I waited a couple of hours for her to get down there. At all you appreciate the difference.

A Washington, D. C. one was made for the Kluksa's Shrine and shown in the city of Washington. Staub's pictures in the Hawaiian National park.

ANTI-INJUNCTION BILL SENT TO CONFERENCE

Washington —(AP)— The house Wednesday sent the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction bill back to the senate-house conference for revision. The report has been accepted by the senate, but objection arose among the bill's advocates in the house to a section which prohibits a federal court from having jurisdiction upon a hearing on an application for a temporary restraining order in labor disputes.

The bill long pending in congress, would outlaw "yellow dog" contracts and prevent the issuance of federal court injunctions in labor disputes.

BILLION DOLLAR TAX BILL

From very early times taxes and those who collected them have been unpopular. The one has been cursed, the other stoned.

But the people under a democracy know that it is themselves, in the mass, who are responsible for the necessity of imposing taxes, and that at the present time our federal government must increase its income over a billion dollars in order to play even.

The struggle now going on at Washington over the proposed measure to meet the deficit, centers mainly on who is to pay the billion. There isn't anything new about that controversy. It has been going on as long as men have been born of women.

The proposed bill raises maximum income surtax rates from 20 to 40 per cent. It also doubles inheritance taxes and compels estates of more than 10 millions to pay a rate of 40 per cent. It creates a brand new tax on gifts which reaches a rate of 30 per cent if the gift be of 10 millions or more.

But the main bone of contention is over a tax of 2 1/4 per cent on practically all manufactured articles except food necessities, which it is estimated will erase about half the deficit.

There is a pronounced complaint against this feature of the bill because it will amount to a direct tax on every person in the country but we cannot take seriously the argument that it will be a crushing burden to the ordinary citizen when the very men who now assert that fact are the ones who voted 500 millions to the Farm Board for the express purpose of so manipulating the prices of wheat and cotton as to make living higher in every cottage and at every crossroads in the country. That was in effect one of the greatest of sales taxes ever invented and it was a levy upon every loaf of bread and every pair of cotton pants. It resulted in an enormous tax upon the working man and was felt by him the most.

And some of these gentlemen who are opposing the sales tax have also told the country within the last few weeks that if we could only have good old time beer a tax upon it would bring in 600 million dollars a year. They are willing to tax everyone in the land who wants a glass of beer but not anyone who might buy something even more useful.

Certainly those who are willing to tax everyone who uses beer and bread and cotton will not be able to kindle much enthusiasm by telling the people they are being crushed by something they were willing to load on the same people under another name.

THOSE OLD GREENBACKS

An eccentric woman, who rated high among hoarders, died recently in New York. Driven into seclusion a quarter of a century ago by a terror of poverty engendered by the panic of 1907, this woman withdrew hundreds of thousands of dollars from banks, secreted the money in various hiding places, even pinning tea thousand dollar bills in the lining of her dress. A million dollars in cash was thus withdrawn from circulation and became as useless as a motor car without gasoline or a flea without a dog.

That there are many similar cases, hoardings of smaller amounts of course, but the total running into tens of millions, is shown by the quantity of old, large-sized paper money still in existence. A United States Treasury report sets this amount at $575,000,000. Three years ago the government called in the old-style bills, yet a quantity sufficient to wipe out one-half the national deficit is still being withheld from banking channels where it would immediately be sent in to the Treasury moneymakers, whence would emerge in exchange the new smaller currency, ready to speed up the currents of commerce.

A small percentage of these oldtime bills may be in the hands of collectors or have been destroyed, but the bulk is in temporary retirement, bolstering the faltering courage of individuals who can only feel rapture in the sight of a hoarded chest.

Hoarders as a class are hard to reach, particularly those who cannot, or will not comprehend the value of a government bond as the equal of a grizzled greenback. Could this aged currency be returned to the channels of trade and perform its intended function, it would hurry the oncoming return of prosperity, and its holders would improve their position and income by hoarding treasury bonds instead.

A NEW MANCHURIA

The Japanese plan of establishing a new Manchurian state under the dictatorship of Hsuan Tung, or Mr. Pu Yi as he is now known, last of the Manchu Emperors to sit on the dragon throne of China, arouses conjecture as to the reasons for this procedure in view of Japan's military conquest of that country.

Respect for world opinion doubtless exerted a measure of restraint against a too flagrant exhibition of Japanese empire building. While the new Manchurian government is unquestionable under the suzerain power of Tokyo, the resurrection of the former Manchu emperor and the restoration of his dynasty to a throne whence it emerged 250 years ago to conquer China, carries a historical background which may dull to a certain extent the keen edge of world criticism.

Japan faces another problem in Manchuria the solution of which she may never work out to her own satisfaction. Of the thirty million people in Manchuria today, ninety-seven per cent are Chinese. How to control such an enormous Chinese population—almost one-half that of Japan itself—is a problem of great magnitude, to say nothing of the infinitely greater task of attempting its absorption into the Japanese empire.

Throughout history it has been the Chinese who have done the absorbing. The Manchus came out of Manchuria three centuries ago and set up their emperors at Peiping but the Manchu people themselves were eventually absorbed into that great mass of Chinese, so that today few full-blooded Manchus are left, even in Manchuria.

For every Chinese in Manchuria there are fifteen of his blood south of the Great Wall and should the four hundred million people of the eighteen provinces in China succeed in finding the secret of national unity, it is hard to see how the Manchurian Chinese could be kept from gravitating to this great mass unless they should be held back by some mighty symbol such as Hsuan Tung represents. There are literally millions of Chinese to whom the republican form of government means nothing and who would welcome the return of their emperor, their "Son of Heaven." They would accept him as a concrete symbol of sovereignty and Henry Pu Yi's government, however worthless, stands a better chance of Chinese acceptance in Manchuria than any other that could be established under Japanese control.

It is probably true that certain influential circles in Japan, including high military cliques, would welcome a restoration of monarchical government throughout China. Realizing the futility of absorbing the twenty-eight million Chinese of Manchuria into her own empire, Japan may envisage the gradual extension of Hsuan Tung's power below the Great Wall until China is again united under his rule, over which Japan could be expected to wield a powerful influence.

CONEY ISLAND TREASURE

Not every one with a flair for hunting lost treasure can go after the steamship Egypt's gold or the Lusitania's subsea wealth. But for stay-at-home bodiers with adventurous souls, Coney Island offers a field for small-scale treasure seeking. Every summer the horde that descends on Coney's sands lose hundreds of ornaments—rings and necklaces, dimes and quarters, pocket knives and watches. Each year, when the season is over, hopeful prospectors go to the beach to do systematic digging for lost valuables. It is a sort of placer mining. A shovel and a home-made sieve are the only tools needed. As the sands run through the wire netting they may leave only a bit of shell or broken glass or a cigarette end. But if a coin or a piece of jewelry shows up, the finder feels that he is getting something for nothing. If the department of sanitation could only arrange to cooperate with these beachcombers by hauling off the refuse they sift out, Coney would become a model of cleanliness—at least until next season's rush.—New York Times.

Drake university is not a big university as big universities go. It does not have the name of one of our sovereign states to bring it prestige. Recently, its football coach resigned to take a similar position at one of the large state universities in the western conference. Now, to Drake have gone the names of two conference coaches and three Notre Dame stars as well as a few more. All of them would like to coach at Drake. At our own state university, with its nation-wide prestige, the list of prominent coaches who could have bettered themselves—oh yeah—by coming to Wisconsin and who even refused to come to Madison for an interview, continues to mount.

TULIPS

Last spring we had a tulip bed
And when the blooms were done,
And all the foliage was dead
We dug up every one.

We put the ugly bulbs aside
And kept them till the fall,
Though several months ago they died
We're going to plant them all.

Though now we cannot see one sprout
Or find the bloom within,
Again will bud and leaf come out
When springtime rains begin.

'Tis strange though tulips seem to die
We're sure they'll bloom again,
But when death comes to men we sigh
And think that hope is vain.

Personal Health Talks

CANCER OF THE LIP

In a large majority of cases of cancer of the lip patients are excessive smokers. Pipe, cigar or cigarette smoking seems equally concerned, especially when the individual is much exposed to sun and wind. Lip cancer occurs chiefly in men beyond middle age. In 75 cases only four were in women, and three of these women were smokers.

Some cases begin with a "fever blister" or "cold sore" that persists over two weeks. Don't worry if you have such a "cold sore" or "herpes" longer than two weeks—just quit monkeying and consult your physician.

A few cases seem to develop upon some simple injury or the bite of an insect, or sunburn.

The best safety precaution for the general public is to seek proper medical advice whenever any sore on the lip persists longer than two weeks, especially if it shows scales, crusts, fissure or a warty thickening.

In a year there were 487 deaths from cancer of the lip reported in the United States. If (a) every one with a sore on the lip followed the advice above given and (b) every physician treated such cases as he would be treated if he were the patient, there should be no deaths from cancer of the lip, for means now at our command will cure every case if applied reasonably early. Surely the wise course, if there is any doubt in the physician's mind when he examines the patient, is to assume the lesion is malignant, cancer, and to treat it as cancer.

The means of treatment that has proved most satisfactory consists of surgical excision of the cancer, preferably with diathermy (electro-coagulation) followed by high voltage X-ray treatment. Of course this is all painless treatment, and it is all safe treatment. Not by any stretch of imagination can this be said of any quack treatment by "Indian" herbs or mysterious oils or pastes or salves.

The danger of delay in such cases is that the cancer will be carried through the lymphatic channels to lymph nodes under the chin, back of the jaw and down in the neck, there to set up "metastases"—new cancers. The use of that modern refinement in surgery—electro-coagulation, electro-destruction, endothermy, diathermy, "radio knife," as it has been variously termed—has the advantage of immediately sealing open or cutting surfaces so that the chance of such metastasis is reduced to a minimum. Besides, this modern method is practically bloodless and leaves rather less scar than ordinary surgery does.

As an ordinary family doctor I have cured cancer of the lip by simple surgical excision, under local anesthesia, in my office, but this is not feasible if the patient postpones treatment until lymph nodes under the chin or in the neck are involved. I have seen very extensive lip cancer with considerable involvement of lymph nodes completely and permanently cured by X-ray treatments alone and that by a country doctor with a little old fashioned X-ray machine. But if I had anything that looked at all like cancer of the lip I should want immediate electro-surgical removal or destruction of the lesion and immediately thereafter (the same or the next day) the first high voltage X-ray exposure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Goose Grease Not Absorbed.
My baby, a month old, was malnourished. We kept him alive several weeks, until a feeding formula was found suitable for him, by just rubbing goose grease from neck to soles of feet. Please explain what you mean when you say the skin cannot absorb. (Mrs. M. A. B.)
Answer—J mean that it is absolutely impossible to feed or nourish a human being by rubbing anything into or on the skin. Your baby was kept alive by whatever food entered the baby's stomach. The goose oil did not harm, and probably helped to keep the baby warm.

Two Packs Multiplied by 3,650
I asked for your aid in breaking the tobacco habit. I want to tell you how your advice about diet and other things worked. I have not used tobacco in any form for the past eight months. I had smoked two packs of cigarettes daily for about 10 years. (L. K. N.)

Answer.—That would cost approximately $100 a year. A thousand dollars for 10 years. Suppose you had preferred a pipe. You might have saved enough each year to purchase a very comfortable life insurance policy for yourself or your dependents. Anyway, I'm glad you've come up from slavery.

The Tynymites

By Hal Cochran

THE butcher said, "Come in my house, but be sure you're a mouse. I fear you'll scare the chickens that I'm shortly going to kill. A butcher shop is what I run. The hens soon will be cooked till done. Remember now, you little lads, I promised you a thrill."

"You'll see a stack of meat that I have butchered and then hung up high. Why, I have lamb and roast beef and a lot of other things. A half of beef hangs on a hook and up at it you all can look. I slice off pieces now and then, as on the hook it swings."

Then Scouty said, "I do believe that entering would make me grieve. You see, I'm fond of chickens. I don't want to see them killed. It's very nice of you to fuss and offer what you've offered us, but I am sure that none of us would be so very thrilled."

This made the butcher laugh. Said he, "What strange lads you turned out to be. But that's all right. Do what you wish. It does not make me mad. Perhaps the baker can do more for you than what he can in store. I'm sure that when you see his home, 'twill make you all real glad."

"You bet!" the baker promptly cried. The Tynymites ran up to his side and shouted, "Lead the way, kind sir. We'll follow right along. You do not kill things, so 's to bake. We'd love to see all that you make. Gee, we can smell some cookies now. The odor's getting strong."

The baker led them to his place. A smile spread on each Tynymite's face. The entrance to the kind man's home was just a great big pie. It pleased them greatly when he cried, "Come on, you fellows, walk inside. You'll shortly see a lot of things quite pleasing to the eye."

Romantic

Countess Ida von Claussen told me a romantic story about how she happens to be in possession of Caprice, the toy poodle which she exhibited in the big dog show.

The countess said she long had been searching for just such a poodle as would strike her fancy. One day in Paris, she sighted a pup in the possession of some persons in a taxi-cab, and it was a case of want at first sight.

She instructed her chauffeur to follow the cab. The countess' motor kept to the chase at breakneck speed, across half of Paris. Finally the occupants of the taxi got out in front of a ritzy hotel, and their pursuer approached them.

The countess introduced herself to the man who held the dog, and as diplomatically as she could, ventured an offer. She told him she was so smitten with the pup that she would pay whatever price he put upon it.

The owner would not sell, but told the countess he knew where he could get a brother of the same breed. She urged him to do this, and the next day the gentleman brought the pup to her apartment for her approval. The countess took him (the pup) to her arms at once, and paid out $450.

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

BRITISH SELF-CONFIDENCE
LONDON, March 16
To come to London today after visiting the Continent is to find oneself in a different mental world. The mood of the Continent, it has seemed to me, was essentially fatalistic; men feel themselves in the grip of forces that are beyond their control. That does not mean that they despair. On the contrary, I was as conscious as I have been in the past of the people in each country think they are weathering the storm rather better than their neighbors. But the mood of the continent whether it be gloomy or cheerful or resigned is passive. Public men do not expect to do more than ride out the storm. But in Great Britain there is a different feeling. These islanders have worked themselves up to a pitch of high confidence in their power to manage events. They are, I imagine, the only people in the capitalist world who actually feel that they can do more than ride out the storm. They are not only confident, but they are also masters to some degree of their own destiny.

In seeking explanations for this great psychological change in Great Britain two main causes seem to stand out. The British people feel that they took an exceptionally heroic course in the way they taxed themselves to balance their budget. The fact that their sacrifices have been followed by some real improvement in trade has seemed to give the whole nation the kind of exhilaration which comes not only from doing a good deed but from being loudly applauded and well paid for it at the same time.

Psychologically, it does not matter whether the economic improvement is due only in part to the fiscal heroism of the people and in large measure the depreciation of sterling, the continuing deflation of gold prices, the miraculous outpouring of the Indian gold hoards and the Chinese boycott of Japanese textile. In the sequence of events things took a decided turn for the better immediately after the British people decided for orthodox financial righteousness. The effect has been to make them feel that their own courage is the cause of their own success. That is naturally immensely stimulating to their confidence.

The other great cause of hopefulness is that the British people are enchanted by the untried possibilities of protection. One charge from free trade to protection has been that it was a radical change. Any one is therefore entitled to believe it is a change for the better. But, it is not only the change which is exhilarating. There is also the feeling that at last Britain is armed to make herself felt in the economic war which is waging in the world.

My own impression is that Britain is not yet a really protectionist country. It will come to that later when protection has created vested interests. Today, Britain is a country which is really aiming at top things. At forcing other countries to lower their tariffs on a basis of reciprocity, and at creating a sheltered market within the empire. I don't suppose that the policy is as yet fully formulated. But it looks very much as if Britain might turn to the idea of establishing tariffs at three levels. A moderate tariff, say 10 per cent, for any nation agreeing not to make a higher tariff against British goods; less than 10 per cent as an imperial preference for the dominions if they give equal advantages; and finally really high tariffs on the American or French pattern for nations which do not agree to the reciprocal low tariff standard.

This general scheme is not that of the government but it represents the point of view of what might fairly be called the opinion and it might prevail if the ultra-protectionists in the Tory party do not get out of hand. At any rate whether or not the general scheme I have sketched is adopted is British policy, of this much we may be sure. It is now the intention of the British people to use their economic power as they have not used it for a century. They are exhilarated at the prospect. They greatly enjoy the idea of making protectionist countries realize that tariffs feel like to the outsider. They like the new power they exercise in Europe. And so they feel quite sure of themselves.

Their internal confidence is reflected back to them from the continent. Not only is there a return of funds into sterling and a general bullishness about Britain, but also there is unmistakable evidence of an enormous recovery of political prestige. One must not be misled by the apparent weakness of Sir John Simon's diplomacy in dealing with Japan. This is a Tory imperialist government which at bottom sympathizes with Japanese action in Manchuria. The real measure of British prestige is that on the continent all the Scandinavian countries, Italy and Germany, are moving within the ambit of British economic and financial action. There can be no question whatever as to the reality of the British influence in Europe.

The position of last summer, when it almost seemed as if London had ceased to command, that Paris was supreme, no longer holds. Paris is still very powerful and it would be egregious folly to underestimate its strength. But Great Britain has resumed its ancient position among the powers of Europe.

CUT AND DIVERSIFY IS CROP-PLANTING SLOGAN IN DIXIE

"Live-at-home" Idea Is Plan of Extension Workers in Various States

Atlanta—(AP)—Conservation probably will be the keynote of Dixie's farm program this year.

Such a program, built around the "live-at-homes" idea, is the plan of extension workers of various states, and already farm agents and home demonstration workers are carrying plans to their constituents.

The outlook for cotton this year, leaders emphasize, is far from bright, and an effort will be made to have farmers plant more than one cash crop, varying with the locality and accessibility to market.

A minimum production of cotton is recommended by the Georgia college of agriculture, although nothing has been said about adopting any set average control plan. Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, said a cut of 10 per cent from the 1931 acreage was certain.

More attention to livestock, poultry and food crops will be given by Georgia organizations.

Mississippi farmers are prepared to produce this year's crop at a record low cost, J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture, says.

North Carolina's plan, advanced by the state college of agriculture, provides for all food and feed crops needed on the farm, strict adherence to a budget, cash crops best suited to the individual farm, idle land seeded to legumes, improvement of farm generally, improved living conditions.

Alabama, though Gov. B. M. Miller has refused to join Texas, Mississippi, South Carolina and Arkansas in the move for a law to reduce the cotton crop 50 per cent.

HIGHER PRICES FOR MILK GOAL OF COOPERATIVE

Objectives of Organization at New London Outlined at Institute

BY W. F. WINSEY

New London—The New London local of the Pure Milk Products Cooperative is the outstanding one of the kind in Wisconsin, an audience of 150 persons in attendance at the farmers' institute here Thursday was informed by the two speakers. In the audience was a large proportion of the 300 members of the local.

It was decided to hold a meeting of the local within 30 days to consider New York dairy inspection in this territory. It was also decided to hold a Pure Milk Products Cooperative picnic some Sunday early next summer. To keep the membership posted, exclusive meetings will be held regularly throughout the year. Admissions to these meetings will be gained by the membership card. In the meantime all patrons of the New London milk plant will be given an opportunity to become members of the local.

The principal speakers yesterday were President Curt Rogers, E. L. Luther, superintendent of farm institutes, L. G. Kuening of the Department of Agriculture and Markets, and County Agent G. A. Sell. The New London Chamber of Commerce served lunch at noon and the Frederick's orchestra supplied the music.

The business men have been treating us mighty well since we organized the Pure Milk Products Cooperative," Mr. Rogers said. "With the aid of the business men we held our picnic last summer and lunched today. As we have decided to have another picnic next summer, each member of the cooperative should attend and bring a neighbor with him."

Seek Higher Prices
"We are working to get a higher price for our milk than is paid to non-members and also to increase our membership. When our list of members is complete we can supply milk to a plant or take it away. To do their best your officers and directors must have the support of the members."

Mr. Sell announced that the first meeting of the seed loan committee of Outagamie-co would be held in the court house in Appleton next Saturday. He described the loan and the qualifications of applicants that may be approved by the committee. Blanks required for making the loans will be placed in the banks of the county and in the hands of the chairman of townships.

Mr. Luther's subject was The Educational and Economic Factors Affecting Bargaining Powers of a Cooperative.

"If a cheese factory should get only 100 pounds of milk daily the cost of manufacturing would be very high," he said. "Each increase in the volume of milk to a limit decreases the cost of manufacture. The rule is that volume decreases the cost of handling. Isn't it an advantage then to have all of the patrons of a milk plant signed up as members of a cooperative?"

"It is worth a great deal to the New London milk plant to have all its patrons signed up in your organization. The stronger your organization is, therefore, the greater will be its influence with the plant. As I do not believe that fieldmen of the milk company like to follow rejected milk out to the home of a farmer, I want to see your organization responsible for the quality of the milk each member delivers to the plant. I would like to see all dairy inspections made by an official of your cooperative."

Want Steady Supply
"Let the members of your cooperative decide to make the volume of milk delivered to the plant steady throughout the year. My intention in making these suggestions is to have the farmers assume the responsibilities for inspection, quality, and steady volume that they should have never surrendered. What would your savings be if you had charge of these responsibilities?"

It is also more economical and better for you farmers to have charge of the milk trucking than to permit the plant to do the trucking as at the present time. The trucking of all farm commodities should be in charge of the farmers themselves. Some milk plants send trucks out 35 miles to pick up milk. If farmers controlled the milk trucking no truck would be permitted to go out 55 miles. The radius of your milk territory should not be more than 15 miles to be economical.

"One of the best qualifications for influence and bargaining power is a reserve fund in a cooperative treasury of about $100,000. Keep your organization poor and without funds and it will be weak. For this reason, I would like to see your organization start a reserve fund."

"Supply a constant volume of quality milk, do your own trucking and dairy inspections, increase your membership to the limit of your territory, and start a reserve fund, and you will soon be able to show milk bargaining power."

"Educate your membership and keep members fully informed just what your plans are and what you are doing."

"With 400 members we could inspire greater confidence within and beyond our ranks. Let us all rejoice when a new member signs up."

NITRATE FIRMS IN CHILE FIGHT U. S. COMBINE

Foreigners Come Out Into Open as Allies of Chilean Movement

Santiago, Chile—(AP)—Foreigners in Chile who have been hard hit by the formation of the Cosach nitrate combine, controlled by American interests, have come out in the open as allies of a Chilean movement to dissolve the organization or change it radically.

What formerly was under-cover work by these firms and individuals became a public move through distribution of an English version of two condemnatory reports by government investigating commissions. Space also was purchased in a foreign weekly for publication of the reports in English.

Several of these firms are British; others are of various nationalities. They have lost much of their former business in nitrate and also in mercantile lines and shipping by the formation of the Cosach nitrate combine, controlled by American interests. Don't Listen When Child "Talks Back"

BY ANGELO PATRI
I get many letters from parents who are hurt by the things their children say to them. The children are adolescent boys and girls anywhere from fifteen to twenty-four. "I can't say a word without his flying in my face. The way he talks back to us is shameful." Let's see what this is all about. Children of adolescent years have developed a personality. They have dislikes as strong as those their parents have. They have desires that are likely to be stronger than those of their parents. Fathers and mothers aren't anxious to go out evenings to parties and dances. Nor do they want gay clothes, good times, crowds and noise. Youth wants all those things. It cannot understand anybody's not wanting them. For youth to think is to speak. Only age and experience bridle the tongue. Parents think that a child ought to have more respect for them than they have. They think that they ought to have but if they haven't? You will not teach them to respect you if you lose your temper at their frank address. You give them another reason for not respecting you. It is best to keep silent until you have thought well what you want to say and then say it with sincerity and stick to it. Consider this talking back. What does it all amount to? You feel that this child is flouting your authority. You have none. You are a parent for a brief time, when the child was helpless and weak and your strength was all he had to go upon. That day has passed and he must now go on his own. He ought to go smoothly enough and without hurting you too much, but suppose he doesn't? Did you ever answer anybody back? Didn't you want to many a time? Experience may have silenced you but that was only until you had the chance to speak your mind. You felt choked until you freed yourself of what was rankling in your thoughts. Then, no doubt, you told about it at home when the children were listening. You told what he said and how promptly you put him in his place and with what telling effect you spoke your mind. "I told him where he got off once and for all. Believe me. He won't think that he can say and do exactly what he pleases to anybody and everybody that comes along. He'll look to see where I am next time. If you don't speak up for yourself you're going to get yours and quickly enough too. Nobody's going to put anything over on me. At least not while I know it." Good enough. You feel better. You can go on now with the happy consciousness of having held your own in the face of domineering authority. Now remember that your son or daughter was listening to this sort of thing over and over again. Talking up for themselves was the right thing to do. You said so. Why not try it for themselves? Adolescent children are human. Dominate them and they will react exactly as you do. Try the other way. From little up share things with them. Make them your partners as soon as they can get the idea. Stop giving orders and begin making suggestions as soon as you can safely do so and that is earlier than you think. If the relationship between you is friendly there can be no talking back. First, because you won't be talking beforehand. Last, because the child and you will be thinking together, planning together. Differences of opinion will be adjusted. And if he does talk back try what silence does. It is a great teacher. Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Husbands Are Guests At Dinner

HUSBANDS were guests at the dinner for Altar Guild of All Saints Episcopal church Wednesday night at the parish hall. A social business meeting followed the dinner at which time plans were made for the annual flower sale to be held March 26 at Galpin's hardware store. A social hour took place. Eighteen persons attended.

A program of games and singing provided entertainment at the St. Patrick party and box social given by St. Wilfred Grenfell Mission of the Baptist church Wednesday night at the church for members of the church and their friends. About 25 persons attended.

Plans for a play, "The Dream Girl," to be presented the latter part of April were discussed at the meeting of Zion Lutheran Mission society of Zion Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon at the parish school auditorium. Members of the society will take part in the play.

Mrs. Gust Racine and Mrs. Frank Koch were the readers at the meeting of the Reading Circle of First English Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Minnie Thompson, 518 N. State-st. Twenty members were present. The next meeting will be in two weeks with Mrs. Gus Lemke, 415 E. Spring-st.

CHURCH CHOIRS WILL PRESENT MYSTERY DRAMA

"The Three Marys," a mythical mystery drama for Easter by Howard D. McKenney, will be presented by the combined choirs and the Wesleyan Players at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon. Thirty-six adults will participate in the drama. "The Three Marys" is the old story of the part that the three women most devoted to Christ played during the last days of his life. Characters to be depicted are the three Marys, Mary the Mother of Jesus, Mary of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalen; Joseph of Arimathea, who gave the tomb; Nicodemus, the man who desired to know the Christ better; Simon of Cyrene and his two sons, Alexander and Rufus; who were compelled to carry the cross; Pilate's wife; the serving maid who questioned Peter in the courtyard; Zachaeus, "the man of little stature"; the Pharisees; Judas, the betrayer; the twelve disciples; the two sepulchre angels; the two spirit guardians of the cross, and a cloud of witnesses—the throng of those nameless ones, that have trodden earth's ways in the pursuit of the great ideal by the path of self-sacrifice. Although modern in origin, this mystery is based on an early Easter church play, probably the first of the liturgical dramas which were so popular in the medieval period. Following the custom established at the Christmas performance, the names of the persons taking part will not be published, as all characters are seeking to submerge their personalities in the characters which they portray.

THE STORY OF SUE
By Margery Hale

A MEETING

THE day following Sally Bradley's fearless remarks concerning Arnold Page, Sue was restless. She walked around the lawn, stood leaning on the gate that opened on the cobbled walk that led down to the little brook.

Finally she decided that she would follow the brook and see where it went.

She thought once or twice that someone was following her. She decided that she was mistaken and walked on. In the middle of the brook she saw a log that was broad and flat.

"If I walk on the stones I can get to it, and just sit," she told herself, not noticing that she was talking out loud. "It looks safe. . . nobody can reach me there. I'll do it."

She reached the log. But again she had an instinctive feeling that she was being watched.

Suddenly she glanced up. The man who stood on the bank looked as startled as she did.

"Jimmy?" Sue gasped. "What are you doing out here?"

"Sue?" There was relief in his voice. "I didn't know you were the girl that I was dodging. Mind if I come out to the log?"

Sue smiled and moved over. She reflected that Jimmy's face was a little worn and harassed. It wasn't the open book that it had been once upon a time.

"I've been going over some land out here, with an eye to a house that I'm building. I'm doing the landscaping of the thing, too, and I wanted to get the layout. But I got tired of looking around and started to follow the stream," he said.

"Mrs. Webber's house?" Sue asked.

"How did you guess?" he asked, surprised.

"I thought it was out this way," Sue explained, although she had no idea at all about it.

"Grace is going to New York—right away," Jimmy said apropos of nothing. "Did you know it?"

"She told me she was thinking of going."

"She needs a change. But she'll miss a good party over the weekend. Natalie—Mrs. Webber—is having it. And she wanted Grace especially." But he flushed as he said it.

"It's too bad. Going anyway?" Sue asked.

"I have to put in my time somewhere . . . since Grace won't be home."

Sue wanted to say: "You will be putting in your time in pretty much the same way that you have been spending it." She didn't, though. She said: "Come and see us often."

"I'll do that," Jimmy answered in a voice that told as plainly as could be that he had no intention of doing it.

"No you won't," Sue said, laughing as she said it. "You are being polite, Jimmy, that's all. I recognize the voice. Grace is a peach, isn't she? Do you realize how lucky you were to get her?"

Jimmy nodded. "She's grand." But his voice held no enthusiasm.

"That wasn't burning up," Sue said. "What's the matter? Have you and Grace decided that absence will make the heart grow fonder?"

To her surprise Jimmy's voice was very serious when he answered. "I'll tell you what's the matter, Sue."

HEAD LINE IS IMPORTANT IN NEW COIFFURE

BY ALICIA HART

Before the war a heavy head of hair was a sign of beauty. Women, with faces that might easily stop a clock, would boast that their hair came below their knees, that there was so much of it that they had to braid it tight to keep it inside a hat, and so on.

The bob cured most of such vain boasts. But you still do see some women who flaunt a mop of hair as if it were beauty personified.

If you have an oval style, you know that the thing today is a good head line, a smart, sleek silhouette. It is not the amount, or the length, or the color of your hair which counts really, but the way you make it beautiful.

If you admit to yourself that you are a little bit of a devotee, go to an excellent hairdresser, point out your defects to him (he probably has seen them already but won't mention them, being a good barber). Let him trim your hair so that it will be thick where your head is flat and thin below it, and you will come away thinking everybody has been mistaken in your intellect, that in truth you have a fine head.

If your hair makes you too wide-headed, have the sides thinned out a little. There is no more artistic

INDEPENDENCE BILL TO BE OFFERED IN HOUSE

Washington—(AP)—The Democratic leadership has decided to submit to the house the Hare bill providing for Philippine independence. The measure probably will be brought before the house next month. It has been approved by the house insular committee and provides for freedom of the islands within eight years after establishing of the new government.

At last you can enjoy happy mealtimes! Ralston Wheat Cereal, now enriched with vitamin B, actually CREATES eager appetites

NO MORE coaxing—no more entertaining determined young "hunger strikers" in futile attempts to make them eat! Now you can create an eager, healthy appetite for your child in an easy natural way, even without one cent of additional expense.

You see, scientists recently discovered that the reason for listless appetites, for nervousness and irritability among so many children today is a deficiency of vitamin B—the appetite-stimulating vitamin which nature has distributed so sparingly in foods. To safeguard against that common deficiency—to make it easy for you to assure your child an adequate supply of this appetite-stimulating factor—Ralston Wheat Cereal is now enriched with two and one-half times its normal amount of vitamin B.

Think what that means! Now in each bowl of delicious Ralston Wheat

Does your child's cereal pass this test? Pour into your hand a little of the wheat cereal your child eats. If it is a complete cereal it will consist of Brown particles, which provide building materials for flesh, bones and teeth; Yellow particles, rich in the vitamins which promote health and stimulate appetite; White particles, which supply warmth and energy. Over-refining or processing removes or destroys some of these health-building properties. To be sure you are getting them all, look for the brown, yellow and white particles. All three are in Ralston.

HALT ATTEMPT TO BLOCK MOVE OF SUPERVISORS

Injunction Preventing Officials from Acting Is Dissolved

Neenah—Efforts of five townships and one village to block execution of county board legislation for redistribution of maintenance cost for indigent patients at Sunnyview sanatorium met with temporary setback Wednesday in circuit court.

Judge Beglinger ordered an injunction preventing the various officials from acting under the county board resolution dissolved.

The trial of the issues involved is yet to be heard, but in the meantime, action of the various officials will not be delayed.

The suit involves $25,000 as far as the city of Oshkosh alone is concerned, the board having been of the opinion that the city was overcharged to that extent. The entire matter arises as a result of the board resolution enacted Nov. 29, 1931, ordering reapportionment of this cost on the ground that certain municipalities had been overcharged while others had been undercharged.

Plaintiffs in the action now pending are the town of Black Wolf, Nepeuskun, Rushford, Winneconne, Wolf River and the village of Winneconne. These are on the list as having been undercharged, and under the terms of the board resolution would be required to pay additional sums.

Defendants include the city of Oshkosh, town of Neenah, town of Vinland, and town of Utica, all listed as having been overcharged. The county of Winnebago is named as defendant, as well as Earl E. Fuller, as county treasurer, and the various treasurers of the towns and village, plaintiffs, named for the purpose of preventing carrying out of the transaction.

The trial involved includes the years from 1924 to 1929 inclusive. It is alleged there is no legal authority for such action as that taken by the county board. The total sum involved is $25,000.

WAGES REDUCED IN PAPER MILL

Cut of About 10 Per Cent Put Into Effect in Crepe Wadding Division

Neenah—A reduction, averaging slightly under 10 per cent was put into effect Wednesday in the wage rates of employees of the Crepe Wadding division of the Kimberly-Clark Corporation. This division of the company operated about 55 per cent of capacity over 1931 and is now running full time, according to a report made Thursday by the corporation officers.

The management of the company looks with disfavor on any wage reduction at this time in the paper and pulp mills of the Corporation where running schedules are light and normal incomes of employees have been severely reduced because of short hours, officials said.

The rate reduction in the crepe wadding division was based on an exhaustive job study, which has been conducted in the Corporation's mills over the past year. As a result of this study, the reduction does not show a uniform percentage of reduction for all employees but does reflect a tendency to bring rates into line with the rated importance of each occupation. All monthly salaries were reduced during 1931.

It has been the policy of the Corporation during this depression to resort to every other means of economy, such as inventory reduction, job consolidation, simplification of systems, etc., before approaching wage rate reduction, officials declared.

ROTARIANS HEAR HISTORY OF WATER AND LIGHT PLANT

R. E. Thickers, Commission Chairman, Is Speaker at Club Meeting

Menasha—A history of the city water and light plant, from the construction of the pumping station in 1904 until the present time, was given by R. E. Thickers, chairman of the water and light commission, at a meeting of the Menasha Rotary club in Hotel Menasha Wednesday noon.

The pumping station was built in 1904 during the administration of Mayor August Henning and was united with a light plant to provide electricity for street lighting in 1906. In 1912 the sale of retail electric current was started and from 1913 to 1917 the city was involved in litigation with the Wisconsin Michigan Power company relative to Menasha's right to operate the plant. In 1927 the present filtration plant, with a capacity of 4,000,000 gallons per day, was constructed at a cost of $140,000. In May, 1931, the operation of the plant was placed under the direction of a commission.

The municipal plant, which has become a model for other cities, was found in excellent condition when taken over by the commission. Thickers stated. At present, electricity is retailed at rates as low or lower than any other community in the state.

Weather conditions have a marked effect on the amount of water used, while increased sale of electricity will depend largely on additional development and use of appliances. Within a few years, many homes will be heated by electricity, he predicted, and builders of new homes will be wise to insulate the buildings in anticipation of such development.

WINNEBAGO GROUP TO PRESENT PLAY

Expect Large Audience at Presentation of "The First Year" Tonight

Menasha—"The First Year," a three-act comedy by Frank Craven, will be presented by the Winnebago Players of Neenah and Menasha in the Neenah high school auditorium Thursday evening. The play will be given as a guest performance.

"The First Year" is the only play ever produced indoors by the twin city dramatic organization, and a large crowd is expected. Miss Ruth Dieckhoff, who has directed all major productions of the Winnebago Players since their initial appearance in 1928, has been in charge of rehearsals.

The leading roles will be played by Gordon Bennett as Tommy Tucker and Miss Estelle Brown as Grace Livingston. Other members of the cast are Mrs. D. Waldemar Bergstrom, Samuel Pickett, Paul Hoyer, Edward Leachman, John McGillan, and Carroll McEathron.

The school's Easter holiday will begin after the conclusion of classes, Friday afternoon and will continue until the morning of March 25.

DAY SCHOOL PUPILS PRESENT PROGRAM

Menasha—An elaborate assembly program was presented by pupils of the Winnebago day school Wednesday morning.

The school paper, "The Old Orchard," was discussed by Curtis Smith, and compositions to be used in the coming issue were read by William Strunge, John Sennsbrunner and Curtis Smith. Original poems which will be included in the paper were read by E. J. Nelson, Frank Hest, Shepard and Lane Dickenson. An original Easter story was read by Jeanne Lawson and French dances and songs were given by fifth and sixth grade girls. Several piano selections were played by Mrs. Eric Lindberg.

The school's Easter holiday will begin after the conclusion of classes, Friday afternoon and will continue until the morning of March 25.

its supporters and that the wisdom of continuing it should be submitted to the people for a final decision. He predicted the nation would remain dry unless a substantial substitute for prohibition is offered.

The status of Ohio's delegates to the Republican national convention, as revealed by Maschke, was interpreted by several leaders of that party as providing additional impetus for a serious fight for a referendum plank in the party's next platform.

It also was seen as a possibly embarrassing situation for the Ohio delegation, which under ordinary circumstances would be expected to name Senator Simon D. Fess as the state's one member of the convention resolutions committee.

Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, is an outstanding dry, however, and it prohibition is made a big issue at the convention, several Ohio leaders of the party said. The Buckeye delegation probably would pass him up for someone with more liberal views.

WETS TRYING TO VOTE CHANGE IN VOLSTEAD LAW

Long, Hard Row Ahead Before 2.75 Per Cent Beer Can Be Legalized

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1932 By Post Pub. Co.

Washington — Efforts to amend the Volstead law so as to permit the manufacture of beer containing 2.75 per cent alcohol will be made in congress in the next few weeks together with a drive to raise revenue by taxing beer.

A widespread impression prevails that by a majority of congress both steps can be accomplished. Spurred on by the gains they made in the recent vote on the proposed substitute for the eighteenth amendment, the wets are determined to push for another record vote. They do not have a majority in sight, but it will be helpful, from their political viewpoint to get a record of how individual members vote not only on the proposition to revise the eighteenth amendment but on the specific question of amending the Volstead act and also a separate proposition involving a tax on beer.

As a practical matter there is no chance either of the 2.75 beer bill becoming law or of revenue being derived from beer taxation in the immediate future, especially when revenue to balance the budget is so sorely needed. The legal steps and necessary delays in determining the constitutionality of the proposed bills would be sufficient to deprive the federal treasury of the expected benefits and to keep beer from being sold lawfully in higher alcoholic content than the present restriction of one-half of 1 per cent.

Court's Decision
One of the popular fallacies about prohibition is that the supreme court of the United States decided that congress could not tax the alcoholic content of beverages within its own discretion. The truth is the supreme court never made any such statement. What the highest court did say was that in fixing one-half of 1 per cent as the limit of alcoholic content, congress determined on a limit that was plainly within the meaning of the constitution, that is one-half of 1 per cent was agreed upon as non-intoxicating.

To determine just what limit would be regarded as intoxicating and thus prohibited by the eighteenth amendment would require a test case to be passed upon by the supreme court. Much evidence was brought before the court just after the eighteenth amendment was ratified in an effort to prove that 2.75 was not intoxicating. But thus far no federal court has agreed that 2.75 is safely within the law.

Just how long it would take to decide the constitutional questions involved is a matter of conjecture. The first step would involve action by a majority of congress. There is no such wet majority at the present session, judging by the roll call this week in the house.

If another congress elected next autumn should feel differently about it, then the new majority would not have a chance to pass upon the question until December, 1933, unless of course the newly elected president of the United States should call an extra session sometime after Mar. 4, 1933.

Volstead Act Issue
Many members of congress who are inclined to the wet side do not think the eighteenth amendment could be nullified by the amendment of the Volstead act. This feeling would influence many votes. The 11 members of the Wickersham commission did not agree upon many things but one thing on which they did agree was that the eighteenth amendment could not be controverted by amending the Volstead act.

As for revenues from taxing beer, this is the most uncertain quantity of all. For if the amendment to the Volstead law should not be declared unconstitutional by a lower court and taxes were collected and then the supreme court declared that congress had exceeded its authority in fixing 2.75 or higher as the alcoholic content, the government would have to arrange to refund all taxes collected.

In any event the chances of getting any revenue from beer taxation for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1932, and ending July 1, 1933, are remote because of the legal delays entirely apart from the difficulty of getting a vote prior to December, 1933. There are also such questions as conflict between states that have laws fixing one-half of 1 per cent and a federal law permitting a higher content. All but a half dozen states have state laws paralleling the Volstead act. These would have to be amended too and in many instances the state legislatures meet only once every two years so that the next regular session of most of the legislatures after congress had presumably acted in December, 1932, would be January, 1935, unless special sessions were called.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and dim. Tight, tight pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure. Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of cathartics to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous gripping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you. CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A SQUEEZE PLUS AN END-PLAY

Duplicate Contract has been making vast strides in popular favor. Perhaps this is in a measure due to depression, because Duplicate offers substitution of competition between players in place of stakes. However, Duplicate Contract is a fine game in itself and really requires no explanation whatever for its tremendous popularity. The Interclub and in some cases Intercity competition fostered by Duplicate brings to light many interesting hands and furnishes to the Bridge analyst much interesting material.

The hand below was the dramatic climax of a team-of-eight Duplicate match played in Louisville, Ky., between teams representing the Fourth Estate and University Clubs of that city.

At all four tables the final declaration was three notrump with North the Declarer. When East selected the fourth best heart for an Opening lead, North was confronted with a rather difficult problem and only one of the players was able to make his contract. In reaching this result he had to make both a squeeze and an end-play.

West won the Opening lead with the Ace of hearts and returned the Knave. The Declarer, from the opening lead, was able to read the division of the heart suit and to see that without trouble he could make 8 of his required 9 tricks. He had four clubs, two diamonds, one heart and one spade. The game trick appeared not too remote in the diamond suit, but the distribution of his own and the Dummy had warned him that the distribution of this suit, as of the heart suit, might be unfavorable. North refused to win the second round of hearts, but won the third with the King, saving his last heart as a card for exit in order to place East in the lead at the end, to lead spades in the event that it should become necessary to make the spade Queen to fulfill his contract. East covered the diamond Queen, forcing the Ace in Dummy, and when North returned to his own hand with the diamond Knave, West's club discard disclosed the opposing hands. North then led his Ace of clubs and followed with a small club to Dummy's King. As the suit was continued, North discarded a spade on the fourth round and East was "on the spot." The situation then was:

When the club 5 held the trick and North discarded the spade 2, East was forced to choose between unguarding the spade King and thus allowing the Declarer to make his contract by taking both the Ace and Queen of spades, or to surrender one of his three high cards. In the actual play he elected to discard the heart Queen. The Declarer then stuck him in with the diamond and won the last 2 tricks with his spade honors.

OUTLINE DIET FOR FAMILY OF FIVE

Madison—(AP)—A diet that will permit a family of five to live on an expenditure of one dollar per day has been worked out by Miss Abby Mariatt and Mrs. May Reynolds of the University of Wisconsin home economics department.

Food buying suggestions, menus and market orders were prepared at the request of Governor La Follette and the material is being distributed by the state industrial commission and is used by the state board of health, and by social welfare organizations.

A typical day's menu recommended consists of a breakfast of oatmeal served with milk, eggs, bread, milk for the children and coffee for adults; for dinner, pork liver baked with vegetables, bread, stewed apples, milk for the children and tea for grown-ups; supper, creamed potatoes and cheese, cereal for the younger children, cabbage slaw, oatmeal cookies, milk for children and tea for adults.

New York — After Calvin Coolidge's waspish and heartfelt veto of the McNary-Haugen bill, the amiable and ponderous Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa kept right on plugging for farm relief and now he and other farm leaders counsel with President Hoover about agricultural problems.

The white-haired congressman, 73 years old, is dean of the house, with 33 years continuous service. For many years he has been chairman of the committee on agriculture. He is interested only in "saving the farmers" and speaks on no other subject. In 1926 he put in a bill to backstop them with $150,000,000 of federal money. It was defeated. The McNary-Haugen bill, loaded with new and complicated farm economies, was impaled on the Coolidge veto in 1931.

He is not one of those wild western radicals. He is a rich, conservative Democrat who knows his percentages as well as any man in congress. He studied farm economics in his youth. When he was nine years old he hired out "to reap and mow, to plow and sow," and to be a farmer's boy," as the old Yorkshire ballad has it.

He was to receive $1 a month for each year of his age. At 19 he owned a farm with a surplus of $50 cash. He loaned the money and herded the interest back into the corral as faithfully as he had herded the cows. When he was 31 he was a bank president. He has given 33 years of his life to a good natured, sometimes garrulous but always patient fight to subsidize agriculture.

This writer has known dissolute journalists to cease imbibing for a moment to proclaim that "Pussy-foot" Johnson is a "good egg." Today's news that Mr. Johnson's British prohibition organization has collapsed ends the veteran rum brawler still on the job, and highly esteemed in England. They like him for his sportsmanship. When the medical students knocked his eye out in London in 1919, he was cheerful about it and kept on organizing.

Mr. Johnson is the dean of voluted belles lettres, his prohibition chronicles including even an "encyclopedia of Alcohol." He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and devoted the years following to writing for prohibition publications. Theodore Roosevelt made him a United States marshal in Indian territory. He got 4½ convictions for liquor violations in two years. There, disguising himself as a drunken gentleman, he got the name "Pussyfoot." He was born W. E. Johnson in Cambridge, N. Y., in 1857.

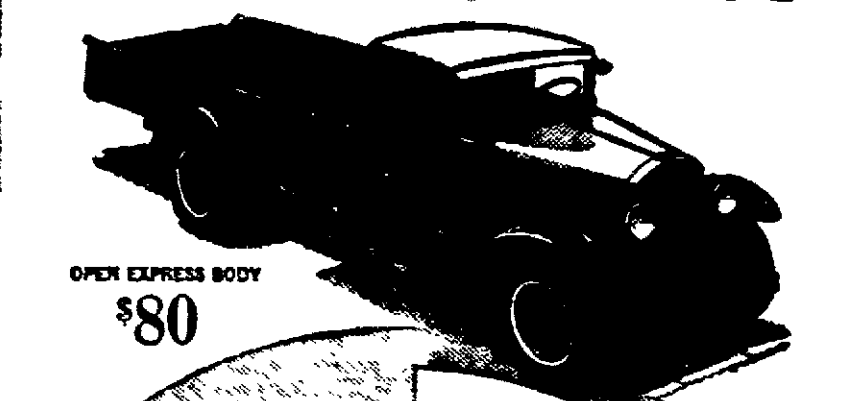

George E. Latta, who goes to Honolulu to aid O. C. D. Brown in the defense of Mrs. Granville Fortescue as an up and coming young New York lawyer who was admitted to the bar only ten years ago. As assistant U. S. attorney general in Hawaii he has served a term in prison for a conviction of contempt of court and was with the New York Police Force. He is the law partner of O. C. D. Brown. J. D. Brown was a former attorney general.

PLANS READY FOR ADDITION TO INSTITUTE

Construction of Wing Expected to Start About April 1

Plans for the J. A. Kimberly Memorial, to be erected as an addition to the Lawrence College Institute of Paper Chemistry, are being made ready for release by Chester Walcott, Chicago architect. The plans have been approved by the board of trustees and by J. C. Kimberly, who donated $100,000 toward the erection of the building as a memorial to his father, the late J. A. Kimberly.

Construction of the new building is to begin as soon as weather permits, and bids on the various contracts will be called for about April 1.

It is planned to use the new structure as the main administration building of the institute, and it will be joined to the present building, erected last year, by an enclosed passage at the level of the first floor. The memorial is to be 78 feet long by 41 feet wide and will include two stories and a basement. It is of colonial architectural design and is to be built of Lennox stone. A high pillared porch, a cupola with a clock, and a slanting roof will help differentiate the new structure from the present building.

The main floor of the building is to include a spacious reading room, measuring 33 feet by 31 feet, a recreational reading room, a library, an office, and a small photographic dark room, a large optics laboratory, a research reading room, and a library work room.

The space made vacant in the present building by transferring the library and the offices of Dr. Rowland to the new structure is to be converted into classrooms, research laboratories and offices.

Many donations have been received of late at the institute, including fellowships, books, and equipment, which is indicative of the interest which the school has aroused among paper manufacturers. Their numerous contributions are making possible extensive research into problems facing the industry.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
By MARY BLAKE
"PISCES"

If March 18th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:10 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:20 p. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Adverse influences, especially for the business world, will prevail during the morning hours of March 18th. A change of vibrations, however, will make the afternoon and evening hours more full of promise. Young people and their careers will be much to the fore.

Children born on this March 18th will be light-hearted, friendly and generous little beings. They will make steadfast friends, dependable workers and true lovers. They will have extravagant tastes, high ambitions and practical ideals. They will have naturally easy manners.

Born on March 18th, you lead rather a purposeless existence. The fine points of your life are indefinite and shapeless. You are as a human being in motion without a track or line to follow. You are not satisfied with either yourself or the world in which you were born, but seem unable to change either. Your mind is full of fruitless wishes, for you do not know how to make your dreams come true. This is probably due to an inferiority complex, false pride, the habit of procrastination, and a lack of moral courage. You need to have some definite purpose as your guiding star in life. You know how to make the most of opportunities, when they are pointed out to you.

You have the qualities of a subordinate, and are capable of attending to details. You are faithful to any given responsibilities, but are afraid to climb to any new fields of endeavor. You have the ability to do menial work and the mind to think things out. The fear of failure lags, and will keep you back.

You are subject to fits of blues when life does not seem worth living, and you should fight against their return—they are bad for you and unpleasant to others. You are sensitive and excitable, and your temper is of an uncertain quality.

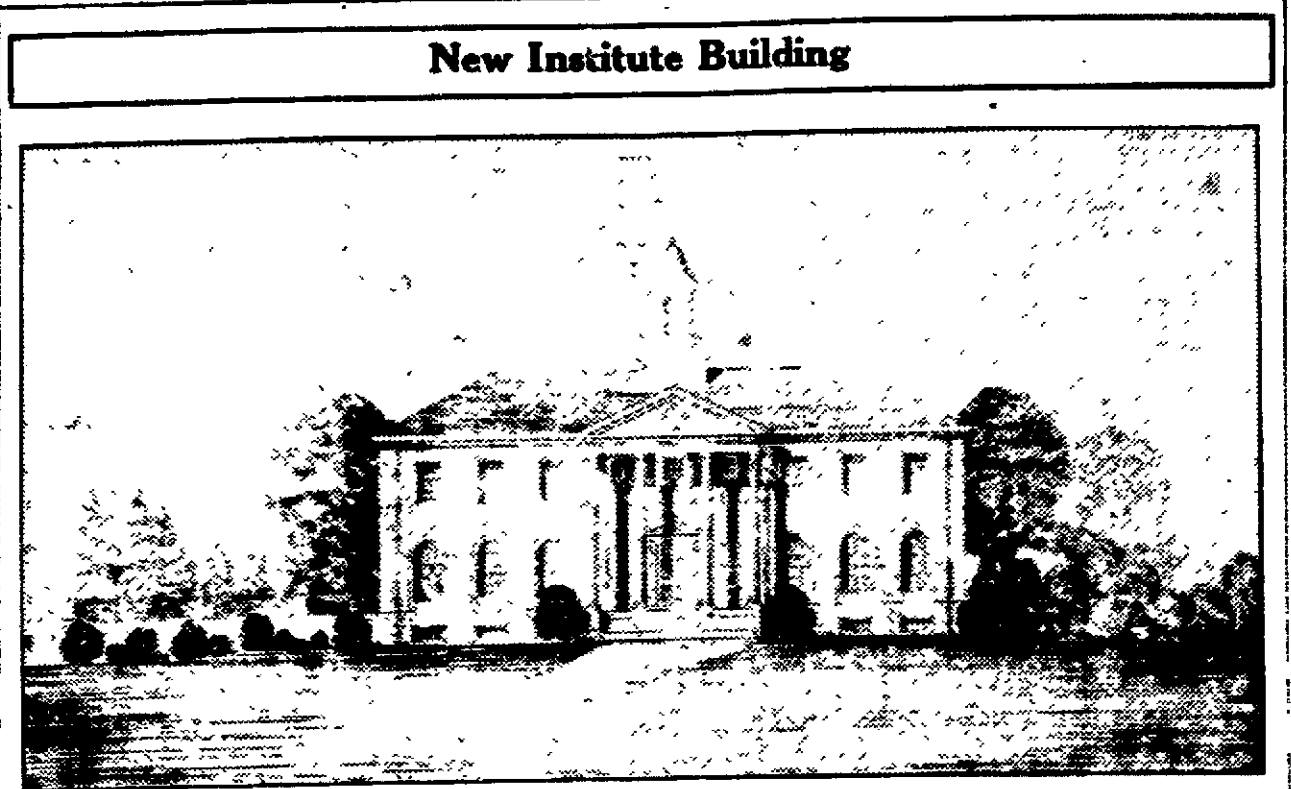

Successful People Born March 18th:

- 1—William Dyer, statesman.
- 2—John C. Calhoun, vice-president under John Q. Adams and Andrew Jackson.
- 3—Grover Cleveland, 22nd and 24th president of U. S.
- 4—J. C. Phelps Stokes, publisher.
- 5—Nathaniel G. Herreshoff, boat designer.

NO MANUAL LABOR FOR MRS. KASTURBAI GANDHI

Bombay—(AP)—Official instructions were telegraphed to Surat today to transfer Mrs. Kasturba Gandhi, wife of the Mahatma, from the "C" class of prisoners to the "A" class. This means that she will not have to do manual labor while she is serving the six months term to which she was sentenced last Tuesday.

PARENTS STILL BELIEVE CHILD TO BE RETURNED

Lindberghs Hopeful Baby Will Be Brought Back After Furor Dies Down

Hopewell, N. J.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who are awaiting stoically through the dragging days and nights were reported today to pin their hopes on:

(1) A police belief that Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., kidnaped 15 days ago, is still alive.

(2) A feeling that when the furor subsides, the kidnapers may negotiate the 20-month-old child's return.

The world excitement that followed the crime is already dying down. Yesterday newspapermen here sent out by telegraph only 50,000 words. On March 3, at the high pitch, 240,000 words streamed over the wires.

A high police authority, declaring a belief the child is alive, based it on the contention the kidnapers would be afraid to destroy the infant. It would be just as easy to leave it in a hotel room if the hunt pressed too close, he said.

Although the detective ingenuity lavished on the case, he said, would rival that of any of the master sleuths of fiction or real life, the police are no nearer solution than they were two weeks ago.

They do not even know, he indicated, whether the world's most noted kidnapping case was the work of professional infant snatchers or amateurs with amazing luck.

Police resumed today the endless task of checking tips and leads. They were still working on information given them by Mr. and Mrs. C. Leonard Lightfoot of Franklin Park, N. J., two servants leave.

The Lightfoots said their German servant, butler and maid, took a 60-mile auto ride the night of the kidnapping and left their employ the next day. Before going for the ride, they said the servants borrowed a flashlight.

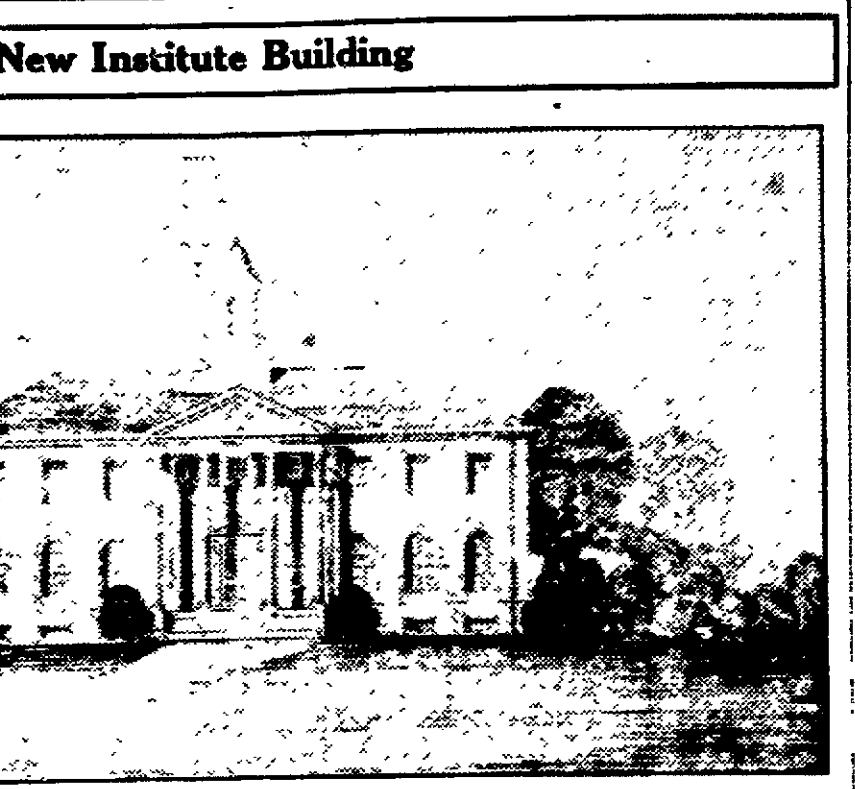

When they quit their jobs, Mrs. Lightfoot said, the butler told her his mother was dying in Germany and that was why he and his wife, the maid, had to leave. Some time later, Mrs. Lightfoot said, she discovered a chisel and some wood from a crate were missing. She wants to look at the ladder and chisel found at the kidnapping scene.

A call for all police departments in the state to act in concert to remove "the blot on the fair name of New Jersey" was issued by Herbert C. Whitney, New Jersey chief of police and president of the New Jersey Association of Police Chiefs.

Belief that the undercover agents of Col. Lindbergh had made little headway in their attempt to get the child back was expressed by the same high official who said he believed the infant was alive.

The New York Daily News said the colonel had hired a private detective agency to augment the searching forces and had given it full power to act for him in negotiating with the kidnapers.

Another of the many "leads" released yesterday when William Gleason was released and cleared of all suspicion, Charles O'Brien, former of a New York newspaperman, had accused Gleason of plotting to kidnap the child months ago.

WISCONSIN MINES WIN SAFETY AWARDS

Receive Honor for Careful Operations Which Reduced Accidents

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—Two Wisconsin mining companies were awarded certificates of honor by the Joseph A. Holmes Safety Association meeting in Washington recently in recognition of careful operation with prevented and minimized fatalities and accidents to their workers.

A certificate was awarded to the Montreal No. 5 shaft underground department of the Montreal Mining Co., of Montreal, Wis., for operating 583 days without a fatal or lost-time accident. An average of 836 man-hours of work was performed daily and the total exposure was 487,224 man-hours.

An identical certificate was awarded to the Vinegar Hill Zinc Co. of Plattville, Wis., for operating underground zinc mines in southwest Wisconsin with a steadily reducing lost-time accident record since 1927. The number of days lost in accidents decreased from 6,694 in 1927 to 327 in 1931, which was the best accident-record year for the company in its 20 or more years of operation in this field.

Certificates of honor were bestowed on 46 other coal-mining, metal-mining, petroleum and cement companies, throughout the country, and two gold medals and six silver medals were awarded to men of these industries for heroism in saving lives of fellow-workers.

The Safety Association is named in honor of Joseph A. Tolman, first director of the United States Bureau of Mines, and is closely affiliated with that bureau.

Alien Job-Seekers In Russia

Certain To Be Disappointed

Moscow—(AP)—American jobhunters and those from other countries who came to Russia, or ordinary tourist visas are going to be disappointed this summer if they expect to find work and stay here.

The government, which has been trying a long time to keep that type of visitor away, appears to be tightening its policy of discouraging unemployed persons from entering the country unless they have jobs specifically contracted for in advance.

Because of the widespread unemployment in other countries Soviet officials are taking care that this country shall not take the overflow for which there is neither sufficient housing space nor adequate provisions to feed them. The new restrictions whatever they may turn out to be are expected to apply even to skilled labor for which there is a great need here.

In other words, the government has brought unusual conditions to bear on those who come without resources and a feeling of adventure, expecting to earn enough money by teaching foreign languages, by doing typing or other odd jobs, to remain. Hereafter the tourist visa will permit only a short stay which will not be extended under any circumstances.

There are many foreigners in that category here now, including possibly a score or more of young American men and women, some of whom have been in Moscow as long as two years. They probably will not be affected by the new restrictions, since most of them already have created places for themselves in the Soviet scheme.

It is certain, however, that no more will be permitted to enter the country unless they show adequate means of support.

Last week came two graduates of technical schools in the American middle west. They had no practical experience and after a futile search for work they had to borrow enough money from American residents to get to the nearest diplomatic representative of the United States.

NEW STATE IN MANCHURIA ON SHAKY GROUND

General Ma Chan-Shan Is Important Factor as New War Minister

Tokio—(AP)—The brand new dictatorial government of the dapper young Henry Pu-Yi, heir of the ancient Manchurian emperors, was reported tottering in Manchuria by Japanese press dispatches today, over the question of General Ma Chan-Shan who has been named its war minister.

Revels which have occurred at Tientsin and Manchuria, General Ma's province of Heilungkiang, have caused the former defender of Tsingtao to rush home from the new dictatorial court at Chang Chun, reports to the Rengo News agency said, breaking away in the midst of the triumphant ceremonies surrounding the Pu-Yi inauguration.

Several groups of Chinese troops in Heilungkiang refused to celebrate the establishment of the Pu-Yi government and rose up against General Ma himself, declining to transfer their allegiance.

It also was regarded as noteworthy that the course of the inspection tour of General Shigeru Honjo, Japanese Manchurian commander, included an airplane trip to Tsingtao yesterday, in company with General Ma.

Former Enemies

Only four months ago these two generals were fighting each other on the same spot in the first important battle of the Manchurian campaign.

Another small uprising was reported at Poyon, 70 miles from Harbin. The chief of General Ma's staff, as well as several brigadier generals, were demanding that their chief resign his portfolio as war minister in the Pu-Yi regime. They charged he sought only to obtain personal glory.

Other elements closely associated with General Wan Pu-Lin, who was governor of Heilungkiang under the regime of Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, and later ousted, also were opposing General Ma.

Even in the cabinet of the new government at Changchun a dispute arose between two of the Chinese founders, Tsang Shi-Yi, Fengtien governor and tentative premier of the Pu-Yi cabinet was reported objecting that Hsi Hsia, governor of Kirin, another founder, was unfit for the post of finance minister.

FUTURE NOT BRIGHT

Washington—(AP)—Announcements from Shanghai that a palace is to be erected for Henry Pu-Yi and that the capital, zed, are regarded as a bit premature by diplomats studying the possible future of the independent Manchuria.

The Stimson non-recognition policy adopted by the league of nations is generally taken as a guarantee that none of the league members will recognize Pu-Yi's government with the possible exception of Japan. Furthermore the nine-power treaty signed at the Washington conference makes it clear that signatories of that treaty cannot grant recognition to the new government built on territory taken from China without violating its terms.

The nine-power treaty provides in article two that signatories—the British empire, France, United States, Belgium, Italy, Japan, China, Netherlands and Portugal—will not enter into any agreement which would impair the territorial integrity of China. This is regarded by state department officials as applicable to the present situation in Manchuria where Pu-Yi and his supporters are certainly seeking to dismember China.

To build palaces and reconstruct cities cost money. With no immediate revenues in sight the new government is seeking a foreign loan but without recognition this will be next to impossible to obtain.

NEW LOBBY CHARGE HURLED BY WILBUR

Secretary Attacks Charles S. Barrett, Former Farmers' Union Head

Washington—(AP)—For the second time in a week Secretary Wilbur flung a charge of lobbying today against a critic of the interior department, this time singling out Charles S. Barrett, former president of the Farmers' Union.

An article recommending abolition of the interior department written by Barrett, was placed in the congressional record yesterday by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

Through Senator Snoot of Utah, Wilbur replied in the same organ, charging Barrett was seeking to influence settlement of a big claim now pending before the interior head. The claim, for $625,000, is by the Chestate Pyrites and Chemical corporation of Atlanta, and results from unprofitable mineral development undertaken to aid the government during the World war. Barrett, said the secretary, was unsuccessful some days ago in obtaining immediate settlement; threatened to "get" the interior department and block its appropriation bill.

Wilbur said he considered the Barrett attack "unreasonable" but damaging to the reputation of interior officials. Several days ago the secretary charged John Collier, secretary of the American Indian Defense association with fostering senate attacks on the department.

PROBLEMS OF CREDIT FACE GERMANY NOW

Economists Find Satisfaction in Recent German Election

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—(CPA)—In the political results of last Sunday's elections those who are concerned with the German economy continue to find satisfaction. They believe that the reelection of President Hindenburg in April will lead to closer relations between Germany and France as soon as the May French elections are out of the way. It is, however, the credit problems that face Germany in the next three months that most concern them.

The latest returns of German trade indicate that the astonishing export balance which prevailed in the latter part of 1931 is not being maintained. This represented in considerable part payments for goods purchased on long term agreements which were then becoming due. They were negotiated before the currency situation in countries where Germany has had good customers became demoralized and when buying power was much greater than it is today. The difficulties which impose themselves on the German industrialist and banker are those of securing exchange with which to meet obligations abroad.

Improvement seen
American bankers who have returned from Germany in the past two weeks are of the opinion that there is a 50-50 chance of that country getting through to the end of June without declaring a moratorium. The improvement in the political outlook since their return is more in favor of maintenance of financial stability in Germany, for it means assistance will be given to a conservative government that would have been withheld from a radical one. It does not, however, guarantee relief from the pressing conditions surrounding nearby payments on long term dollar loans and on short term credits that are due in the months of April, May and June.

In this period the semi-annual interest on 70 of the 120 German dollar loans had to be paid. The amount involved in interest alone exceeds $22,000,000. It includes the half yearly interest on April 15 on the Germany 7 per cent government loan and on the 55 per cent international loan on June 1. It also takes into account several German state loans and the interest on a large number of German municipalities, on the bonds of the various agricultural banks and mortgage institutions, as well as on the issues of the leading German public utilities and industrial corporations.

Many Due April 1
Quite a high proportion of the total interest payments falls due April 1. It is understood funds to meet these have been accumulating in New York and that it is reasonable to expect all of these current obligations will be met. Normally the money to cover the German government loan are remitted over a considerable period prior to pay day and are held by the paying agents well in advance of their disbursement. The problem of the debtor governments or corporations will be more acute in connection with payments due in May and June, since the supply of exchange is dwindling and the position of the Reichsbank is not greatly improving.

In addition to these public dollar loans there are credits of a private nature negotiated in 1930 by American bankers in connection with French associates. It is understood a portion of these credits matures in the next three months, although the larger amount falls due next September. There is considerable interest in banking circles as to the position of this credit, which is for a respectable amount and is rather closely held.

Altogether, the next three months promise to be the critical period in the German financial situation. If Germany is able to meet her obligations up to July 1 on her dollar loans and credits, it is a fair guess that she will, by that time, have secured terms from her creditors that will give her a sufficient period in which to recover and to establish her ability to meet interest and, probably, sinking funds on her external loans. The period is also a critical one for other countries in central and southeastern Europe on which pressure has been intense for nearly a year, compelling Bulgaria this week to announce her possible inability to meet interest on her American loans.

Middle-Class Income Folks Set Pace For Automobile Driving, Survey Here Shows

"Time" Study Reveals Who Does Most Auto Driving in Year

There are families in every income group living in Appleton that own more than one automobile, the number of two-car owners increasing rapidly with the increase in their annual incomes, according to the survey of buying habits made by the magazine, Time, in Appleton last year. The average number of two car families in the $2,000 bracket is less than 1 family out of each thousand, but in the group of families earning from $2,000 to $3,000 a year, one family out of each thousand have two or more cars and in the $3,000 to $4,000 group, one out of every 100 families has more than one car. Appleton was selected for this survey because investigation disclosed it as a typical middle west city, with no slums and no Peacock alley and without the extremes which unbalance the income distribution of many another city. From the standpoint of geographical location, and from the type of people who live here it was regarded as a normal city in which the buying habits of the people could be studied and the conclusions extended to the rest of the country.

The analysis of automobile ownership and sales was interesting because it indicates that many more than half of the families in the city drive cars. Even in the lowest bracket, where incomes are less than $2,000 a year, 525 out of every 1,000 families drive cars.

More Income, More Drivers
In the next bracket, between $2,000 and $3,000 annual incomes, the proportion of families driving cars increases to 815 out of each thousand; in the $3,000-$5,000 bracket, the investigation showed 914 families out of each thousand with cars, between $5,000 and $10,000 the number increased to 956 and over $10,000 every family had at least one car. In the $5,000 to $5,000 bracket, the survey showed 1,015 cars per thousand families, in the next group it increased to 1,207 cars per thousand families while in the highest group each thousand families owned 1,500 automobiles.

The number of cars bought second hand decreases up the scale of annual incomes. For instance, in the $2,000 group 142 of each 1,000 cars were bought second hand, while in the $10,000 group there were only 70 second hand cars. In the group between $2,000 and $3,000, 752 families per thousand bought their cars new, and 110 families per thousand owned second hand machines. Except in the higher brackets, there were just about as many purchases of new automobiles for the three years 1925-1927 and 1928 as there were for the three years 1929, 1930 and 1931. There was a decided falling off in car purchases by the group with incomes of over $10,000 in the last three year period as compared with the first period.

Large Mileage
The survey indicates that the most driving is done by car owners in the $2,000-$3,000 class. They average 11,655 miles per year, as compared with 11,243 for those in the $3,000-$4,000 group, 11,104 in the $4,000 and over group, 10,794 miles for the group earning between $3,000 and $5,000 and 9,972 for the group earning less than $2,000 a year. But in spite of their greater mileage they use less gasoline per thousand families than the higher income groups, due largely to the fact that they own and drive smaller cars.

Drivers in the groups up to $5,000 a year keep their cars the longest periods before trading them in or buying new cars. The average length of life of a car owned by people in these income groups is 4.4 years for the $2,000 group and an even four years for the next higher group. The most frequent changes are made by families in the group earning from $5,000 to $10,000 a year. They keep their cars on an average only 3.2 years while those earning $10,000 and more keep them 3.3 years. Families whose incomes are from $3,000 to $5,000 change cars on an average every 3.5 years.

The more income a family has the less likelihood that it will replace a worn out car with another car of the same make, the survey indicates. It was found that in the $10,000 group 459 families out of each thousand replace their old cars with another of the same make while 811 families buy a new car of another manufacture.

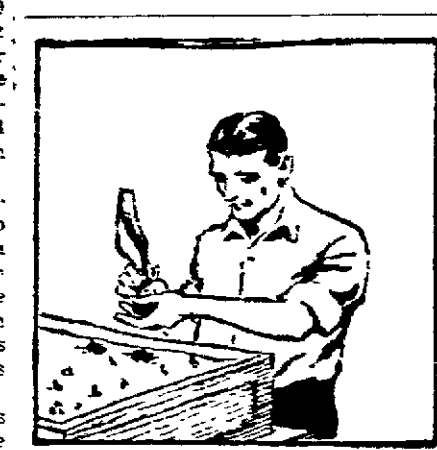

On the other hand, 153 families out of each thousand earning $2,000 or less replace their old cars with another of the same kind and 175 change makes. In the income group of between $2,000 and $3,000, replacements of the same make are made by 249 out of each thousand families and 412 make a change. In the next group 330 families stick to their former make of cars while 449 venture into new fields. In the group earning between $5,000 and $10,000, 459 families change makes as compared with 331 who buy the same make of car.

HINTS for HOME GARDENERS

This is the fourth of a series of exclusive articles on vegetable gardening prepared for NEA and Post-Crescent.

BY WM. R. SEATTLE
Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture
There is always a rivalry among gardeners to see who can produce the earliest radishes and the first ripe tomatoes. Those who live in the south can plant seeds of cabbage, kale, radishes, beets, peas, and potatoes in their gardens very early, while the northern gardener has to wait for the season to advance and the weather to become warm.

Starting seed in hotbed or cold frame, as well as indoors, will provide early transplants.

The northern gardener can gain time, however, by sowing seeds of tomatoes, cabbage, peppers, eggplant, and lettuce in boxes or pans of soil in the house, then when the little plants are large enough he can transplant them to a small cold frame, and in that way have large plants ready to set in the garden when the weather becomes warm. Take head lettuce, for example; it is a cool-weather crop and stands considerable cold, but it doesn't stand heat, and the object is to mature the heads before the heat of late spring or early summer comes on.

Start Head Lettuce Indoors
It takes 12 to 14 or possibly 15 weeks to grow head lettuce from seed to solid heads. By planting the seed indoors, transplanting the plants to a cold frame, then planting them in the garden as soon as actual freezing weather is over, you can have nice head lettuce by the time your plants sown out-of-doors will be half grown.

One hundred plants can be grown in two flat boxes each three inches deep, 12 inches wide and 24 inches long. First sow the seed in a shallow box, or a pan, and just as soon as the seedlings are large enough to handle transplant them to the boxes in good soil. Don't forget that the plants are likely to grow weak and spindling if kept too warm or in the house too long. It is good planning to have a little coldframe that you can cover with a sash, or perhaps a cover of muslin. Set the boxes of plants in the coldframe just as early as it is safe to do so, but do not let them freeze. They grow slowly in the coldframe and are short and stocky.

Early Start With Tomatoes
Tomato plants can be grown in just the same manner. It takes about 15 days for the seed to come up and plants to become large enough to transplant. Four to six weeks longer will be required to grow the plants after they are transplanted. Peppers and eggplants take just a little longer indoors than do tomatoes, and, in the case of eggplants, be careful to keep them growing and not let them get stunted. Here's a point about the management of coldframes that it will be well for you to remember—in sec-

CIVIC COUNCIL WILL MEET MONDAY NIGHT

The next meeting of the Civic Council will be held at 7:30 Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. The major problem on which the council now is working is the directed play program for this summer. In former years the city appropriated $3,000 for summer play. This year the money was not appropriated and the council would have the city readjust its action or appropriate part of the amount.

SPORTS WRITERS MEET BIG TEN COMMISSIONER

Sports writers from papers in the Fox river valley conference will gather at Oshkosh Friday noon for a luncheon with Major John Griffiths, commissioner of athletics in the Big Ten conference. The luncheon is being arranged by Arthur A. Heywood, sports editor of the Oshkosh Northwestern. Griffiths will be attending the teachers convention at Oshkosh Friday.

After the luncheon the scribes will get together and pick an all conference basketball team for the valley league.

FRENCH NET STARS OUT OF INDOOR MEET

Quarter Finals Shows Only Yanks Competing for Indoor Title

New York (AP)—The national indoor tennis championships, which started out to be a sort of winter preview of what might happen in next summer's Davis cup play with France, as usual, the favorite, have become an all-American tournament with the quarter final round just getting under way.

One after another, the three French aces—Jean Borotra, four-time winner of the title, Christian Bousset, a favorite to displace his countryman this year, and young Antoine Gentien—were bowled over yesterday by American opponents of comparatively low rank, and then to add insult to injury, they all were beaten again in the doubles.

The draw sheet now shows George Lott of Chicago, top seeded player, pitted against Julius Seligson, chunky New York player whose steady driving turned back Gentien in straight sets; Gregory Mangin, from Newark who conquered Bousset, against Sidney B. Wood, Jr., last year's Wimbledon champion; and Frank Shields, tall New Yorker who is seeded second, against Frank Bowden of New York. Bell, a round ahead of the field, meets the winner of the Shields-Bowden match in the semi-finals.

NEW LONDON BOXERS WIN AT THE POINT

Herbie Thompson Gets Decision After Best Bout of the Evening

New London—Three New London fighters from the stables of Everett Wells won their bouts at Stevens Point last night in the heat of the evening's card. Ted Atkinson met Nave Claws, Milwaukee. Ted had his man in bad three times before the fight was stopped in the seventh. Claws had fouled Atkinson repeatedly with rabbit punches. The referee stopped the bout and gave the New London man the decision.

Scheduled as a four rounder and in the preliminary class Herbie Thompson proceeded to steal the show putting on one of the best fights yet to be seen at the Point. Herbie got the decision from his man who was a trifle taller and who kept Herbie on his toes the whole four rounds. Both fighters started at the sound of the gong and were still fighting when the fourth round ended.

Old Chief Miller came through with the third win of the evening by taking his man easily in four rounds. One of the largest crowds that ever turned out for a scrap packed the Armory.

BILL PEOTTER GOES UNDER KNIFE FRIDAY

William "Bill" Peotter, who cavorted at end on the high school football team and who played center in the Orange basketball team this year, has entered St. Elizabeth hospital and tomorrow will be operated upon for removal of a loose cartilage in one knee.

Peotter was injured in a football game at Manitowoc last fall, the injury was aggravated in another game the week following, and resulted in a condition that can be corrected only by surgery. Peotter will be confined to the hospital a few days and then forced to hobble about on crutches for a couple weeks.

George Nichols, Maier In Light Heavy Finals

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS
Copyright 1932

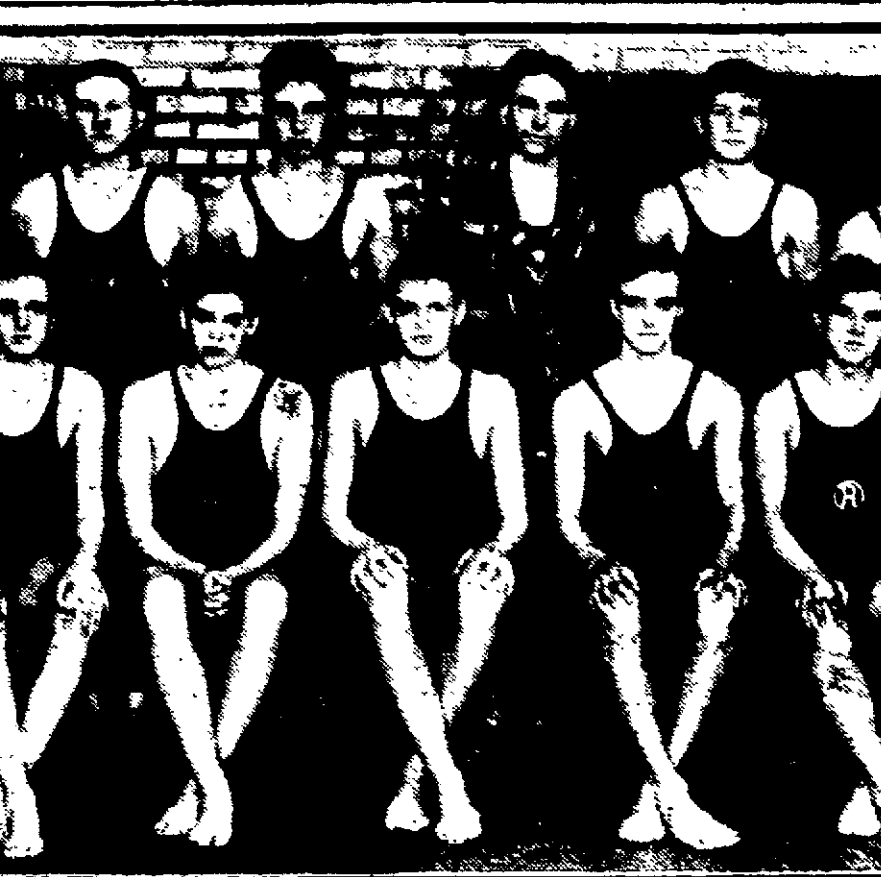

CHICAGO (CPA)—With such bigged purchases as George Nichols of Buffalo and Dave Maier of Milwaukee swinging at the light heavyweight championship of the National Boxing association and affiliated bodies, at the Chicago stadium Friday night, there is a good chance that the title may be won on a knockout.

Throughout the National Boxing association's tournament, both Nichols and Maier have puled a lot of dynamite of the chins of their several rivals. Nichols and Billy Jones, Lou Sozza and Charles Beranger on the canvas without putting them away but did give the full count to Dan Patrick. Maier, who had only two bouts in the early phases of the tournament, knocked out Alie Bain and outpointed Roy Williams. Both on averages it would seem that Nichols is the harder puncher of the two, although not the boxer, according to followers of Milwaukee's Maier.

Few K. O. Victories

A knockout in a light heavyweight championship fight would be something of a novelty since it has been ten years since such an occurrence was recorded. Back in the first post war decade, Battling Siki, the Senegalese, potted George Carpentier in Paris much to the surprise of the boxing world and the Gorgonzola Frenchman. Since then the light heavyweight bauble has been

Training Camp Notes

West Palm Beach, Fla.—(AP)—The results of two practice games between the Regulars and the Yankees made scores off each of the Indians' moundmen, Jablonowski, Bean and Pearson.

Los Angeles—(AP)—The New York Giants have been kidding J. Francis Hogan about his excess weight.

Ordered to catch a full game yesterday to take off extra poundage, and admonished as well to "stop crashing into the grand stand" Hogan replied by getting two bases on an infield hit and winning the ball game with it as well. He knocked a hard drive off Stanley Hack's sliders to bring Vorgez home with the winning run and was awarded second base by the umpire when the ball rolled among some of the spare players along the sidelines.

Clearwater, Fla.—(AP)—Despite the best efforts of Manager Max Carey to turn the Brooklyn Dodgers into a serious, heady bunch of athletes, their old habits still crop up when they get in tight spots on the base path.

The fans laughed it off yesterday when Stude bunted with two on base and Brooklyn five runs behind but a little later when Wilson and Boone both tried to occupy third base at the same time several of them were heard to utter caustic comments about the Leopard's inability to change his spots.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—(AP)—What started out to be an experiment with the New York Yankees, starting the newcomer Frank Crosetti at shortstop and moving Lefty Larry Dean to third, now appears to be the permanent arrangement of the Yankees lineup.

Larry has been giving a dazzling defensive exhibition in his new post while Crosetti has done just about as well in the field beside, hitting hard.

Oakland, Cal.—(AP)—When the roll is called at Detroit's Navin field next month, there will be some talk of a young pitcher named Earl Goldstein, late of New York, who is among the Tigers' new "prospects."

Goldstein turned in another of his capable mound performances yesterday, pitching the last four innings of a game in which the Tigers defeated Oakland 7 to 1. He was a composite under fire by playing the coast leaguers without a run in the sixth after two singles and a pass had filled the bases. He allowed only one other hit.

San Antonio, Tex.—(AP)—Seventeen members of the Chicago White Sox were down for two big "rides" today with a baseball game with the University of Texas, sandwiched in between.

The contest was the first of a series of "ride" games between the White Sox and the University of Texas, which is being held at the University of Texas campus.

BADGERS WANT TOO MUCH, STAGG SAYS

Should Remember There Are Nine Other Good Teams in Conference

Madison—(AP)—"You people at Wisconsin want too much; you want to win all the time."

That's the way Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago summed up his view of the football situation at the University of Wisconsin.

"You forget that there are nine other good teams in the conference that are also trying to win all the time," said Coach Stagg. "You want to win all the time, and that's generally satisfied with taking 50 per cent of the games if they had required me to win all the games at my school, I wouldn't have been coach at Chicago for 40 years."

Coach Stagg does not agree with Dr. Walter E. Meyer's suggestion of Wisconsin basketball coach who recently said the worst of intercollegiate athletics is a quadruple of a team has little or no chance of winning.

"We take another attitude," Stagg said. "We take a beating on Saturday afternoon and get together Monday and try to win a game. That's the way to go on and take another beating. We are back with you on Monday."

WEST BAYS, FONDY WILL CLASH TONIGHT

One game tonight and another Friday will close the 1932 basketball season in the Fox River Valley conference.

Tonight West Green Bay, in first place by virtue of one more win than Appleton, will invade Fond du Lac with little chance of losing to the Cardinals. The Bays were defeated in the second game of the season by Sheboygan, and haven't lost a game since.

Friday night the revamped Manitowoc high school equal will clash with Sheboygan in the season's final game. The Sheboygan team is expected to win easily.

If Bernie Wolfe, West Green Bay comes through with about 15 points tonight he can tie the record for scoring in the conference. Wolfe averaged 15 points a game in the season with a total of 26 points. Wolfe of the Bays has a total of 15 points.

RUTH FAILS TO GET HIT IN SIX TRIES

Babe Goes to Work After Signing 1932 Contract for $75,000

St. Petersburg, Fla.—(AP)—For the first time in ten years Babe Ruth went to work for the old farm of Yankees under a contract for $75,000.

It calls for $10,000 representing a 6 per cent cut of $5,000, but the depression, relatively, has not hit the home run king more than a mild tap in the region of the tank roll.

Among baseball men, the most significant feature of the Ruth situation is the Yankee management's entire unwillingness to risk more than one season's pay on the chances of the Babe sinking about the peak in his well known special C.

His general health and condition never have appeared better but the legs, most observers agree, show unmistakably the strain of 15 years in the major leagues.

His batting eyes were none too sharp in his first exhibition game yesterday, when he failed to get a hit in six tries, and was called out twice on strikes, with Ed Brandt in the box for the Braves. But no fears are felt for Ruth's hitting prowess. He will be blasting 'em, as they say, until they move him up to the plate in a wheelbarrow.

Ruth feels he is good for at least 100 or three years more of regular work.

Meanwhile, for playing 120 ball games, more or less, Ruth will get a presidential salary for 1932. Roughly speaking, he will be paid about $50 for each afternoon's work or relaxation during the regular American league season.

Retiring Badger Coach and Capt. Greg Kabat Plan Drills April 31

Madison—(AP)—Glenn Thistlethwaite, who resigned as head football coach last December, will take charge of spring football drills at the University of Wisconsin, the athletic department announced today.

Drills will be started April 31 and have been planned by Coach Thistlethwaite and Capt. Greg Kabat. Coach Thistlethwaite expressed a willingness to handle the drills inasmuch as his resignation is not effective until June 30.

The athletic department said the spring practice will be put in the hands of a new coach. It is expected within the next month a general meeting of football coaches has been called for tonight. Capt. Kabat and the department expects 50 to 100 men to appear for the spring drills.

BROOKLYN MAY DISRUPT RACE IN SENIOR LOOP

Team Has Great Possibilities; Hoyt's Diet Interests Camp

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Camp history is crowded with the tribulations of the players who have eaten themselves out of the big leagues. Among this year's rapidly reforming cast of Brooklyn Dodgers, the process is being observed with the result that a curious collection of camp life is being the way back into the major leagues to disrupt the National League pennant race.

This renaissance was bound to follow the season of the 1931 season, when the Dodgers, under the leadership of Branch Rickey, were the only team to finish the season with a winning record. The team's success was due to the efforts of the players who had been in the major leagues for several years.

THISTY MAY DIRECT SPRING PRACTICE

Retiring Badger Coach and Capt. Greg Kabat Plan Drills April 31

Madison—(AP)—Glenn Thistlethwaite, who resigned as head football coach last December, will take charge of spring football drills at the University of Wisconsin, the athletic department announced today.

Drills will be started April 31 and have been planned by Coach Thistlethwaite and Capt. Greg Kabat. Coach Thistlethwaite expressed a willingness to handle the drills inasmuch as his resignation is not effective until June 30.

The athletic department said the spring practice will be put in the hands of a new coach. It is expected within the next month a general meeting of football coaches has been called for tonight. Capt. Kabat and the department expects 50 to 100 men to appear for the spring drills.

TAD WEIMAN SIGNED AS PRINCETON MENTOR

Princeton, N. J.—(AP)—Princeton has signed Tad Weiman, former coach of the University of Wisconsin, as a mentor for the 1932 football team.

Weiman, who was coach of the Wisconsin team for several years, was named as a mentor for the Princeton team. He will be in charge of the team's practice and will be a valuable asset to the coaching staff.

BROOKLYN MAY DISRUPT RACE IN SENIOR LOOP

Team Has Great Possibilities; Hoyt's Diet Interests Camp

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Camp history is crowded with the tribulations of the players who have eaten themselves out of the big leagues. Among this year's rapidly reforming cast of Brooklyn Dodgers, the process is being observed with the result that a curious collection of camp life is being the way back into the major leagues to disrupt the National League pennant race.

This renaissance was bound to follow the season of the 1931 season, when the Dodgers, under the leadership of Branch Rickey, were the only team to finish the season with a winning record. The team's success was due to the efforts of the players who had been in the major leagues for several years.

RUTH FAILS TO GET HIT IN SIX TRIES

Babe Goes to Work After Signing 1932 Contract for $75,000

St. Petersburg, Fla.—(AP)—For the first time in ten years Babe Ruth went to work for the old farm of Yankees under a contract for $75,000.

It calls for $10,000 representing a 6 per cent cut of $5,000, but the depression, relatively, has not hit the home run king more than a mild tap in the region of the tank roll.

Among baseball men, the most significant feature of the Ruth situation is the Yankee management's entire unwillingness to risk more than one season's pay on the chances of the Babe sinking about the peak in his well known special C.

His general health and condition never have appeared better but the legs, most observers agree, show unmistakably the strain of 15 years in the major leagues.

His batting eyes were none too sharp in his first exhibition game yesterday, when he failed to get a hit in six tries, and was called out twice on strikes, with Ed Brandt in the box for the Braves. But no fears are felt for Ruth's hitting prowess. He will be blasting 'em, as they say, until they move him up to the plate in a wheelbarrow.

Ruth feels he is good for at least 100 or three years more of regular work.

Meanwhile, for playing 120 ball games, more or less, Ruth will get a presidential salary for 1932. Roughly speaking, he will be paid about $50 for each afternoon's work or relaxation during the regular American league season.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULT
Bears 25, Outagamie Milks 11.

The Bear basketball team last night won the championship for 1931-32 in the industrial league of the T. M. C. A. The trick was accomplished by beating the Outagamie Milk five in a postponed game and the score was 25 and 11.

Had the Bears lost last night's game the league race would have been a three way affair with the Bears, United Cigars and Pure Milks all tied for first place. The Bears topped 12 games during the season and lost but two. They started the year by winning seven and then dropping to second place while the Pure Milks paced the loop. The Bears moved to the top remaining pace as the Milks took another trimming.

Play in last night's game was close during the first half, the Bears showing 7 points to 5 for the Milks. Koss and Grishaker led the Bears and lost but two. VIENNA HEARS HIDDEN FORCES OF DISCONTENT

Threaten Stability of Monarchy — April May Bring Real Trouble

Vienna — (AP) — Rumbles of discontent from under the placid surface of Yugoslavia are being heard with increasing distinctiveness in Vienna, the whispering gallery of Balkan politics.

Some of the mutterings go as far as to predict that the spring, April for instance, may echo to outbursts of, perhaps, really serious trouble for King Alexander and his right hand man, General Pera Zivkovich.

But on the surface all is as serene as it was before promulgation of the new constitution last September. That document presaged the end of the dictatorship which the king established in January, 1929. A new parliament has been assembled and since opposition parties declined to take part in the voting, the legislature is 100 per cent pro-government.

Furthermore, the king has the support of a well-disciplined army, efficient gendarmerie and an espionage system as elaborate and closely drawn as any in Europe. There are also "courts extraordinary" to deal with cases involving defense of the realm and from their verdicts there is no appeal.

Opposition Lies Low

The natural result is that opposition people make no great show of courage as individuals. They take jobs in government offices, if they can get them or even in the army and gendarmerie, wear "yes-man" smiles, and lie low until an opportunity for a sudden and, mayhap, bloody overthrow of those in power presents itself.

It is this characteristic of southern Slav opposition which made these provinces a terror to the Ottoman sultans and is making them today a worry to their own native-born King Alexander.

Before the new constitution was given to the people, defining the responsibilities of the cabinet ministers and Parliament to the king, but omitting to mention to whom, if anybody, the king was responsible, most of the regime's attention was absorbed by Croatin and Macedonian.

Losses Support

The "Loyal" provinces — Montenegro, where Alexander was born and Serbia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, stronghold of his most powerful supporting factions were quiet. The people believed in Alexander and in his promise to give them back their liberties as soon as conditions warranted.

In the five months that have passed since the promulgation of the constitution, however, observers have noted a change in the situation.

The king has lost many faithful supporters. Recent student demonstrations were not led by Croats and Macedonians, but by Serbs, Montenegrins and Bosnians, formerly his most loyal subjects.

In Verbovka, Banja, where Premier Zivkovich was taking a cure, he was grazed by a bullet fired by a student from Belgrade University. No newspaper in Yugoslavia reported the incident, and the young man's family was informed shortly afterward that he had committed suicide.

The last really good opportunity for the king to save the situation according to some observers, was given by the opening of parliament. But he read to the legislators a carefully prepared speech from the throne which omitted any mention of a return to liberty, free speech and a free press, and summed up the dictatorship by remarking that he was sure everybody had been glad to live under his regime during the last three years.

Fear King's Delay

This aroused the very people who had been most patient before. Shortly afterward the university indulged in even more serious demonstrations, during which Zivkovich parliament and speech and press censorship were "jolly" attacked. Hundreds of students were arrested and hundreds of them still are in jail.

People in Belgrade and all over the country are waiting for the spring to bring action of one kind or another. On the surface is that Alexander is ready to grant a new electoral law, new and perhaps even secret ballot elections, and to lighten ship by heaving some of the more objectionable cabinet members overboard.

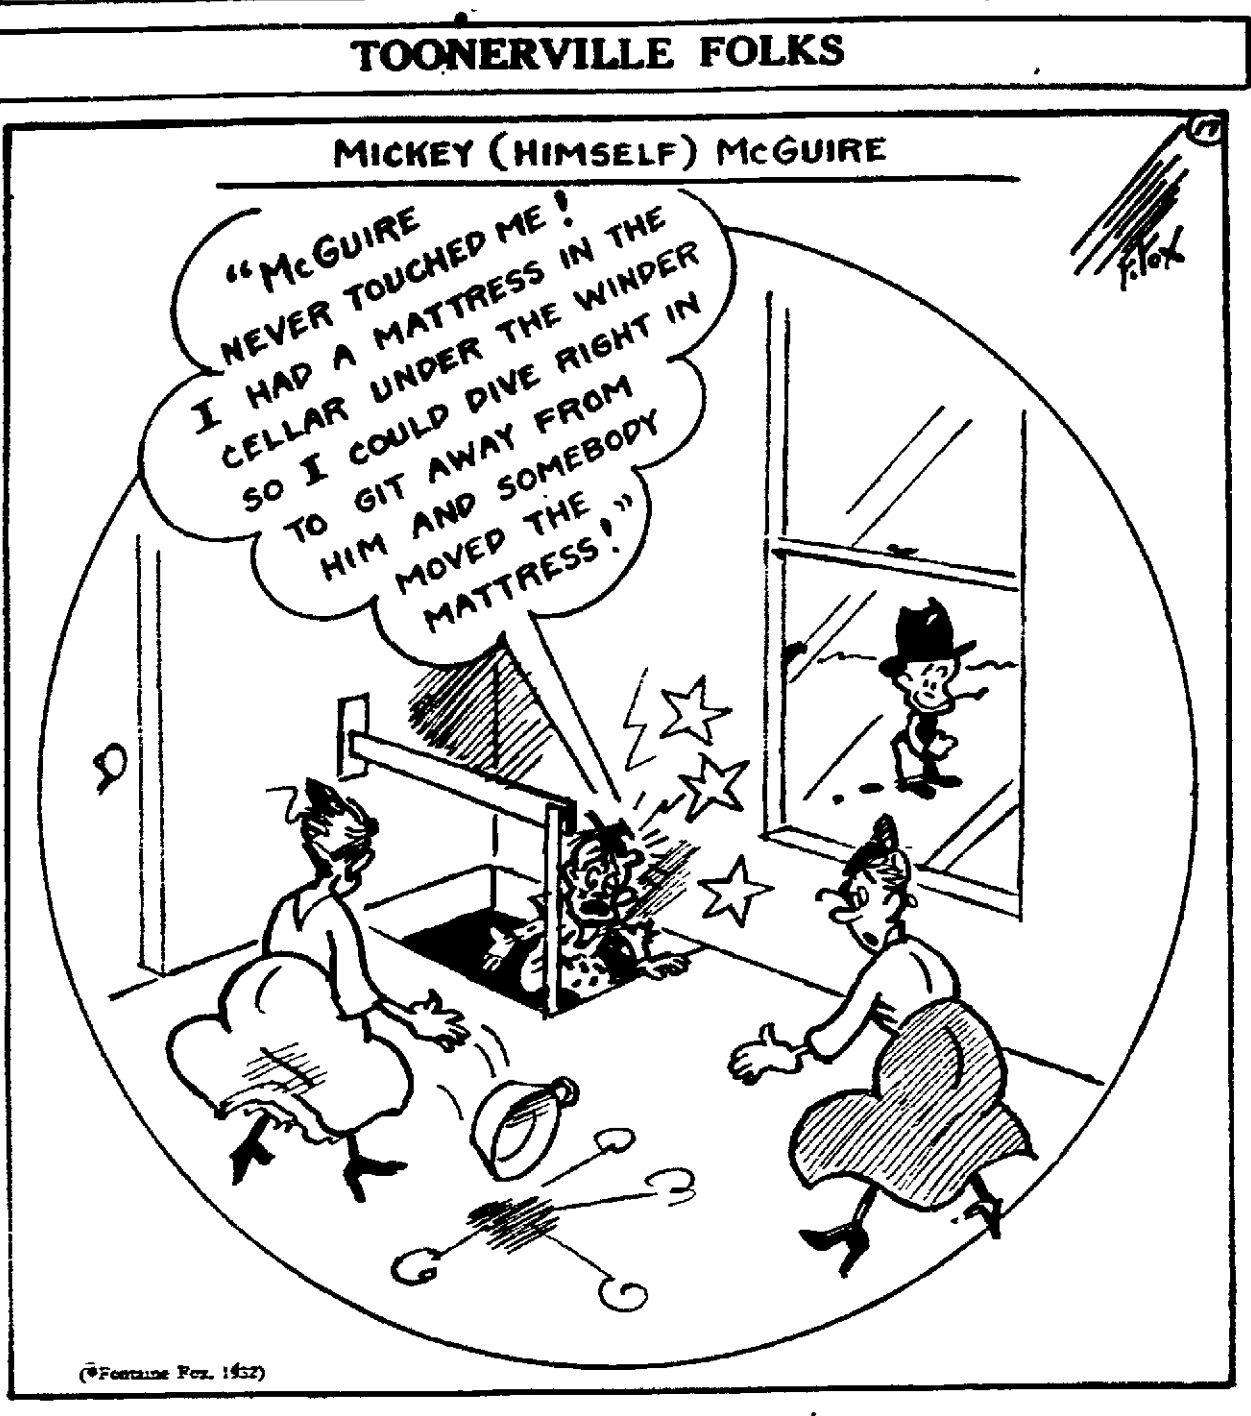

Many astute observers, however, fear that Alexander may wait too long. In that case there may be a rough time, with blood spilled, and with the possibility of a swing to the republican form of government desired by a minority that has been growing rapidly since the Spanish revolution.

Guests at a California hotel were bothered by croaking bull frogs disturbing their sleep at night. The hotel manager rigged up a powerful searchlight system, bathed the nearby pool with light, and the frogs stopped their nocturnal music.

Woman, 105, Recalls Times That Really Were "Tough"

Dexter, Ga. — Take it from a small, straight, brown-eyed woman who has 105 living descendants — in other words, take it from Mrs. Mary A. Shepard of Dexter — These so-called "hard" times really are pretty soft.

Rushing in where economists and financiers fear to tread, Mrs. Shepard opines from the wisdom of her 84 years and the depths of the hickory chair which her husband made a half-century ago, that the only depressing thing about the depression is the way her grandchildren and great-grandchildren "complain" about such little things as salary cuts.

'Twas Tougher Then

"Law me alive," said Mrs. Shepard. "Folks these days don't know a thing about hard times. I recollect the days right after the war between the States, when I reared my family right here in the Piney Woods of South Georgia."

"I married when I was 18, and my husband had not long been back from the war and we farmed. Many a time, he has driven an ox-team 20 miles to the nearest town to bring home fertilizer, and the mud axle deep all the way. I never knew what it was to buy a pair of stockings nor a pair of socks, I knitted them all."

"We raised cotton and sheep and I spun and wove the cloth to make all the clothes for my husband and the children. I dyed them with walnut hulls, beat up in a sack and boiled and strained to make a brown dye. Or, I went to the creek and pulled branches from the gull berry bushes and made a black dye of them."

"There was plenty of indigo, growing in the woods, wild, in those days and I used it for blue dye. There were no sewing machines in my part of the country and I made every stitch of the clothes with my fingers."

"Law me, alive Mr. grandchildren are living in Paradise and don't know it."

Three generations make up the 105 living descendants of Mrs. Shepard. There are six children, 46 grandchildren and 53 great-grandchildren, and with the exception of 12, they all live within the limits of the county where they were born.

"I have six children, living," she said. "My oldest son, who is dead, is survived by ten children and 28 grandchildren, which makes enough offspring for almost any family but that is only a starter. Mary, the oldest daughter, has ten children, and ten grandchildren."

Twelve sons of the Shepard family are scattered about the United States, but the other 93 reside near "Granny" where they may see her often. She, too, "visits around" among her children. For she stopped keeping house three years ago when she was weakened by an attack of pleurisy, her only illness in her 84 years.

SPEED is thrilling

ACCURACY is Fundamental!

Modern systems of communication put a new meaning on the word "speed". Never before have news dispatches moved so rapidly. Newspaper readers profit from faster, more comprehensive reports. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS utilizes these products of inventive genius not only to speed its dispatches. Far more significant are the modern facilities to provide readers of member newspapers with a better report of world happenings. News from once remote points now is handled directly and quickly by capable reporters. Staff writers are transported rapidly to the scenes of important news events for first-hand observation. Each vital angle of important stories is gathered without delay from reliable sources. There is no dependence on round-about, inaccurate reports and rumors. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS dispatches have derived from modern speed a new perfection in accuracy, completeness and reliability.

NEWSPAPER MAN MAY SPEAK TO KAUKAUNA CLUB

Advancement Association Decides to Invite "Brownie" to City

Kaukauna—An invitation will be sent to "Brownie" Milwaukee newspaper man to give a talk here soon on roads by the Kaukauna Advancement Association. The association decided to invite Brownie at a meeting Wednesday evening at the Hotel Kaukauna. The meeting was preceded by a 6:30 dinner.

The talk probably will be given in the high school auditorium and the general public will be invited. Brownie will include Kaukauna in his itinerary on a tour in this part of the state. The date on which he will speak here will be announced soon.

Walter Hagman, general chairman of the Mid-Winter fair submitted a report. He stated that the financial report is not quite ready, as a number of bills have not been turned in. The fair came up to the standard of other years, he reported, with some of the departments of exhibits larger than formerly. About 15 men were given employment during the fair days. They were selected from the Legion unemployment list.

Dr. C. D. Boyd, chairman of the health committee, reported on the clinic held in connection with the fair. Ninety-six adult examinations and 70 children and infant examinations were made. He stated that the physicians in charge were busy with the examinations on both days of the fair.

Reister School Exhibits
Olin G. Dryer, principal of the high school and one of the members of the school exhibit committee, stated that the school exhibits were better this year than in any of the former years. Last year the schools were classified in three groups while this year all schools qualified for the highest class.

Announcement was made by Mr. Dryer that the high school band will take part in a band tournament at Beaver Dam on May 7 and 8. This is the first year in which the local school band has been qualified to participate in a band tournament. In order to raise money for the band to attend the tournament, a concert will be given here on April 16. A price of fifteen cents will be charged. The concert will be directed by O. E. Thompson and will include a band and orchestra. The school band also will take part in regional meeting at Appleton. Mr. Dryer said. Money paid the school band for appearing on the Mid-Winter fair program by the Advancement Association has helped a great deal in defraying the expense of the band uniforms, the principal stated.

A discussion on whether the association should entertain the members of the county board and city officials at the next meeting was held. It was decided to do so if there are enough funds in the treasury of the association after the accounts of the annual fair are settled.

NINE STUDENTS ON SCHOOL HONOR ROLL

Kaukauna—Nine students have been placed on the honor roll at the Junior high school, according to J. J. Haass, principal. There also were nine students with perfect attendance records for the six weeks period. Students on the honor roll were Marguerite Clark, Irma Lambie, and Howard Patterson in the seventh grade, and Ruth Boerner, Harriet Cleland, Robert Kindler, Robert Mooney, Eunice Starke, and Shirley Waite in the eighth grade. Students who were neither absent nor tardy were: Arthur Koehne, Irma Lambie, Laurene Rausch, and Lorraine Schauer, seventh grade; Karl Darow, Earl Feldt, Robert Koehne, Robert Krueger, and Norman Melkert, eighth grade. Reports were issued Wednesday noon.

COUNCIL AND RELIEF GROUPS CALL MEETING

Kaukauna—Disposal of state and municipal relief funds will be discussed at an informal meeting of the common council and the various unemployment and relief groups in the council chambers of the municipal building at 7:30 Thursday evening. Present plans of the poor committee will be discussed, and a program will be outlined for the relief work.

AUGUST RINK NOW ON ARMY RETIRED LIST

Former Kaukauna Man Will Continue to Reside in Portland, Ore.

Kaukauna—Word has been received by Mrs. Frank Rink, 726 Lincoln-ave., that her son, August, has been placed on the retired list of the army. Rink was a Master Sergeant of Battery E, 3rd coast artillery, at Fort Stevens, Ore., and has been in the service more than 30 years.

He enlisted at Appleton Sept. 3, 1901. During the World War he was commissioned as second lieutenant for the emergency, and was discharged as a first lieutenant after nine months' service overseas. He then re-enlisted. A number of local men were under his supervision while being drilled at Fort Stevens.

Serving three years as a private, Rink rapidly moved upward in the ranks. He has served as an electrical sergeant, engineer, master electrician, and during the war was first lieutenant.

During his service he has been stationed for various periods in the Canal Zone, Hawaii, France, and various coast artillery stations on both Atlantic and Pacific shores. He was stationed at Fort Stevens several times during his enlistment, being there from 1907 to 1913 before the war. All his discharges from service show excellent character.

While Master Sergeant Rink has made no definite plans for the future, he will continue to reside at Portland, Ore.

FARMERS WORRIED ABOUT CASH CROPS

Canners' Inactivity Keeps Growers Wondering What to Plant

BY W. F. WINSEY

Aside from the prices of milk and potatoes and a shortage of dairy feeds on the farms, the inactivity of canning companies in this part of this part of the state is the cause of worry on the part of cabbage, cucumber, pea and bean growers. The growers are at a loss to decide on what cash crops to plant.

In contrast to former years, farmers say the canning companies, excepting in rare cases are making no contracts for the raising of the cash crops mentioned above and that one canning company operating in a neighboring city has its fieldmen out canceling contracts made last fall for this season's crops of beans, table beets, peas, carrots and other vegetables.

Some of the farmers say, however, that they may decide to raise small acreage of potatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, regardless of contracts and take chance on demands and prices.

As one of the features of the depressed condition is a shortage of feed which will be aggravated much more by a late spring farmers have decided to plant more alfalfa, sweet clover, corn and small grain that produce all the hay, pasture and the balanced dairy rations needed on the farms.

To tide them over the coming spring, summer and fall, farmers who are already threatened with a shortage of feed will plant emergency hay and pasture crops, such as a

RECOMMEND REDUCED ENTRANCE DEMANDS

Madison—(P)—A reading knowledge of one foreign language instead of two will be demanded of students under a resolution awaiting for curriculum changes adopted by the faculty of the University of Wisconsin school of education.

A report submitted by a special committee and adopted by the faculty, besides reducing the foreign language requirement, provides for a reformulation of academic standards. The student must select three studies from the four general fields now offered by the school—social sciences, pure sciences, philosophy and related subjects and foreign languages.

LOSE FAT This Right Way

Modern science has found that excess fat is largely due to a scanty gland secretion. Too much food which should supply fuel and energy goes to piling-up fat.

Since this discovery, doctors the world over are feeding this lacking factor. The results are seen in every circle. Excess fat has been disappearing fast. Millions have gained slender figures, new youth and vigor, in this right way. They have done it without starvation, by combating the cause.

Marmola prescription tablets present this modern method in a form convenient and cheap. They are prepared by a medical laboratory, famous the world over. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. Now millions of people show and tell the results. Some of your friends are among them.

If your figure is abnormal, your vigor below par, do what these people have done. Take Marmola tablets—four a day until conditions are corrected. Don't starve yourself. Don't use methods which are futile. Do the right thing now.

All druggists supply Marmola. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the amazing results. Go start now. You do yourself a vast injustice by remaining over-fat.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions? Do you know why external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief? Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins clog by the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel, drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID is an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when you can try HEM-ROID with guarantee or money back if it does not end the case. No matter how stubborn the case.

KITTY FREW
by JANE ABBOTT

"Oh, she was all that Gar had pictured her, beautiful, understanding. That must discount Carrol's coarseness."
 Gar was asking his mother about her trip. And Kitty listened, more aware of the affectionate tone of her voice than of what they said.
 Carol had refused tea. Presently she rose to her feet with an abrupt jerk of her body.
 "I'm going to bed. But that I won't be in for dinner," she announced, moving toward the door.
 Her going seemed scarcely to interrupt Gar and his mother.
 "It's great to be home," Gar said.
 "How's that job? Dad said anything about it lately?"
 Mrs. Frew looked a moment before she answered. "Is there anything?"
 "Gar, I've looked forward to leaving you here for a little while after you'd finished college. You've learned a little play."
 "Sweet!"
 To do full honor to the occasion of this celebration Kitty put on her wedding dress.
 The simplicity of its lines becoming; its ivory texture heightened its fresh color.
 They took a taxi to the hotel.
 For Kitty the summer dusk brought through with beads of light splat enchantment: the wide door of the hotel drew them into an Aladdin palace.
 "I'm married, Burkett," Gar told the steward. "We're celebrating the best in the house." And the staid Burkett bowed gravely.
 For Kitty magic lay over the room, in the soft music on an orchestra, in the twinkling of a fountain, over which played a changing flood of colored light the hum of voices.
 They dalled over their dinner talking, sometimes simply gann-butcher."

"Dad'll fix my allowance." Gar pursued with easy confidence.
"Mother'll talk him into it."
"Gar, when will we see you father?"
"Best time to catch him home at breakfast but you have to be around by eight o'clock to do the trick." Let's have breakfast with tomorrow, Gar." Kitty was eager.
The room had emptied of its dinginess. Kitty and Gar had the dining space almost entirely to the selves. "I like it—like this," he whispered into Gar's ear, bent over to her cheek. "It's as perfect as just for us."

But presently four young people came in and Gar, seeing them, claimed loudly: "There's Marge Red Harding, "That's Ma-a-a-a-with her Kit, and Tubby Wilkins."
He was across the room in an instant, shaking hands with the new comers. Kitty saw the girl who he had called Diana Close pass

HURLEY, GARNER ARE BOTH SONS OF SOUTHWEST

Both Also Are Leaders of Oratory in Republican, Democratic Ranks

Washington—AP—Two fighting southwesterners have become "big guns" of the 1932 republican and democratic oratorical warfare which grows fiercer on the Washington front.

One is Patrick J. Hurley, one-time Oklahoma mule skinner and cow-puncher, now a political leader and social favorite high in the counsel of President Hoover.

The other is John Nance Garner, plain "homespun" Texas farmer and veteran warrior of capitol hill, who shines at silk hat and every dress affair.

The affable but quick-tempered secretary of war was jumped into the fight early in the year with bristling speeches before the republican national committee and a mass meeting of young republicans. Youngest member of the Hoover cabinet, he aroused leathargic fellow republicans with a call to "aggressive, triumphant warfare," and denounced "democratic carping" against the administration.

The Garner guns did not begin to roar until recently. The rugged, white-haired speaker of the house suddenly shattered a long silence on matters of partisan politics with his "hell's bells" blast at the Hoover plan for reorganization of government departments.

With the "bi party truce" in congress apparently ended and administration and democratic spokesmen going after each other hammer and tongs, Garner is lashing out with the old fury of the days when he was the fighting floor leader of the democratic minority in the house.

While Hu ley has been "throwing punches" at democrats in all directions and particularly cracking at Chairman John J. Raskob of the democratic national committee, to the delight of fellow campaigners, Garner has been aiming heavy blows at the administration, one wallop being his remark that "Hoover led us into the greatest panic ever known."

Both men, the political horoscope indicates, will remain in the forefront of the battle until election day and perhaps longer.

Garner is a "triple threat" man in the democratic offensive. Besides being a possible standard bearer of his party in the presidential race, as speaker he is the key man in any legislative program as well as the commander-in-chief of the democrats in the house.

Hurley, talked of as a vice presidential nominee until Charles Curtis decided to seek renomination, now is regarded as a possible successor to Simon Fess as chairman of the republican national committee during the "big drive" between the national convention and November 8.

Texas and Oklahoma, with blocks of electoral votes and historic native son pride, will watch with unusual interest this year's battle of the two major parties.

Catarrhal Deafness May Be Relieved

A Simple, Safe and Reliable Way That Calls for No Ugly Trappings, Phones or Other Instruments

Sufferers from catarrhal deafness are usually very sensitive, especially, when carrying around instruments that call attention to the infirmity. So people who are hard of hearing and suffer from catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh will be glad to know of a simple treatment that can be made up at home easily and yet is very effective in relieving all distressing catarrhal symptoms.

From Schlitz Bros. or any drug-gist get 1 oz. of Parmit (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it 2 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This treatment should be tonic action reduce the inflammation in the middle ear, and with the inflammation gone the distressing head noises, headaches, cloudy thinking and dull feeling in the ears should gradually disappear. Anyone who suffers from catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh should give Parmit a trial. Adv.

UNCLE SAM'S AIDS FLOWER GARDENERS

With such a layout as this, it is possible to mix your own fertilizers at home. The ingredients are shoveled on to the wire screen, after being weighed on the scales, and then mixed in proper proportions on the mixing board.

This is the fourth of a series of articles on flower gardening written especially for NEA Service and the Post-Crescent.

BY DR. WM. A. TAYLOR

Chief, Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture

Fertile, if we trace back to the Latin, means capable of bearing. That is the meaning the gardener should bear in mind when he considers fertilizers for his flowering plants. He wants materials that will make his beds capable of bearing his favorite flower plants. So-called commercial fertilizers are a great aid to gardeners and there are many reliable mixtures on the market. These include both processed chemicals and processed animal and vegetable products and by-products.

To make a garden plot really fertile, or capable of bearing, the gardener must make sure that the mechanical condition of his soil is favorable for plant growth. In this sense it may happen that a garden needs humus, or sand, or clay. Heavy clay soils often need humus and sand; sandy soils humus and clay.

Loam Is Standard Soil

A few plants thrive in sand, and a few grow better in heavy clays, but most plants the average gardener is likely to grow will do well in a friable loam.

Stable manure comes nearest to meeting all requirements of a fertilizer. As it decays it furnishes fairly balanced supplies of the three essential plant foods—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash—in forms which the plants can absorb. At the same time it supplies humus that helps hold water and make the soil crumbly and easy to cultivate.

Compost, using the word loosely, is decayed vegetable matter of almost any kind—lawn clippings, leaves, garden wastes, sods, young weeds, manures, green garbage from the kitchen, and almost anything that grows that does not introduce weedy seeds. Every gardener should have a compost pile. It is a bank of fertility in which he makes deposits and withdrawals.

Making Compost Pile

To hasten decomposition of a well-tramped pile of refuse material 5 feet wide, 15 feet long and 6 feet high it should have 100 pounds of carbonate of lime, of which ground limestone is a good example, and 100 pounds of sulphate of ammonia. The pile is best made in layers of a foot each with the proportionate amount of these substances scattered on each layer. It must be kept wet.

With manure and compost as soil conditioners and as the primary sources of plant food, the commercial fertilizers are valuable as supplements. These are nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia, cottonseed meal, dried blood and fish scrap as carriers of nitrogen, superphosphate and ground bone as carriers of phosphorus, the potassium salts and wood ashes for potash.

With most of these it is easy to overdo, to use too much, and injure the plants more than you aid them.

Daily Lenten Reflection

THURSDAY, MARCH 17 "A New Commandment"

(Read John 13:31-35.)

This "new commandment" is for those who have reached the summit, have learned to love their enemies, and have crossed "the great divide." It is the new rule of life which can be followed only by those from whom every vestige of hatred has been eradicated. It is the "magna carta" of the new humanity: "the law of life." We come to it by stages of spiritual progression. Thus, in our fellowship of prayer, we have journeyed together along the pathway of Christian discipleship. Are we ready to accept the "new commandment?" Is Love now, in sincere actuality "the law of life" for us? If so, we need never fear hereafter lest the Radiance depart. Henceforward we ourselves are Radiant, with the Radiance which is of God. Christ in us is the hope of glory.

Prayer: We pray, O Christ, that Thy Love which is in our hearts may be shed abroad from our hearts into the lives of men, near and far. If it be Thy will that we may serve as beacons of a better day, help us to radiate Thy Light so clearly that men may glorify Thee and learn to trust the power of Love in all the affairs of their lives; to the end that strife and bitterness may disappear from the earth, and that Thy Spirit may prevail. Amen.

Eczema on Child. Eyes Badly Swollen. Healed by Cuticura.

"My little brother had eczema very badly when he was only one month old. It broke out all over his head in sore eruptions, and his eyes were badly swollen from it. The irritation was awful and we had to tie his hands up to keep him from scratching. He cried day and night and could not sleep.

"We began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped him. We continued the treatment and before long he was completely healed." (Signed) Emerson Turner, R. R. 2, Farmersburg, Ind.

16 MALES LEAVE CLASSES TO ACT AS CHORUS "GIRLS"

Haresfoot Show, "Lucky Breaks," to Be in Menasha April 12

Madison—Sixteen University of Wisconsin men students, from engineers to classics majors, will abandon their classroom attire for two weeks, when they become chorus "girls" in "Lucky Breaks," thirty-fourth production of the Haresfoot club, which will show in Menasha at the Brun theatre, April 12.

Chosen for their dancing ability and their proficiency in impersonations, Roy Hoyer, dance master, asserts that "this is the best Haresfoot chorus that has ever been seen on the stage, and they will have many novel dances to present."

The dances are the creations of Hoyer, who is a former Broadway star, and coach of Jeanette MacDonald and Dorothy Stone, famous stage and screen actresses. Four of the chorus "girls" will be featured in special dance presentations, arrayed in beautiful creations of a famous Chicago costumer. They include Charles E. Yonts, Lakewood, Ohio; Kenneth D. Brown, Kenosha; Frederic Wiperman, Madison; and Holley J. Smith, Cleveland, Ohio.

The complete dance chorus includes Guilford Hagmann, Kenosha; Hyman G. Kanes, Chicago; Leonard J. Seyberth, Eau Claire; Leonard J. Michels, Kenosha; Bernard S. Klebanow, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Jean P. Thorel, Milwaukee; Paul N. Wiemer, Omaha, Neb.; Todd Jessell, Madison; Lucien S. Hanks, Madison; Jack D. Williams, Wauconda, Ill.; Paul L. Clemens, Milwaukee; Harold C. Bradley, Madison; Edward Niederer, Jenkintown, Pa.

The men's chorus of "Lucky Breaks" includes Donald J. Brotherson, Chicago; Aaron Cohen, Brooklyn, N. Y.; William G. Harley, Madison; Robert J. Leahy, Monroe; Robert D. Johns, La Crosse; Wallis B. Dolan, Shawano; and Walter E. Baumeister, Madison.

The population of France has increased 1,000,000 since 1926. It is now 42,000,000.

22 CITIES WANT STATE POOR AID

Municipalities Spent Total of $1,322,360 Which They Want Back

Madison—AP—An estimated total of $1,322,360.94 was spent for unemployment relief by 22 cities who hope to be recompensed by the state if the supreme court rules in their favor when deciding the distribution features of the $8,000,000 relief law.

The cities are located in counties which have the county system of relief. Under the terms of the law cities which are located in counties not having the county system will receive 25 per cent of the amount they spent for relief in 1931.

In addition to spending money for wages on public works projects the following cities contributed to private relief agencies:

Janesville, $4,500; Madison, $11,000; Watertown, $131.53. Watertown contributed $1,200 to private agencies but spent nothing on public works projects.

The following cities spent money for unemployment relief and will receive 25 per cent of their appropriations if the supreme court rules in their favor:

Baraboo, $600; Beloit, $25,547; Chippewa Falls, $7,800; Cudahy, $16,000; Elroy, $4,500; Janesville, $39,267; Jefferson, $5,061; LaCrosse, $92,023; Lake Mills, $300; Madison, $298,215; Mauston, $8,962; Milwaukee, $559,046; Prairie du Chien, $3,000; Portage, $21,547; Rhinelander, $60,000; Shawano, $2,800; Sparta, $1,000; Superior, $139,534; Watertown, $7,861; Wausau, $8,028; West Bend, $1,200; West Allis, $19,363.

Other cities in the 24 counties which are under the county system of relief but who have not reported their appropriations for relief to the industrial commission are Columbus, Ft. Atkinson, South Milwaukee and Stoughton.

REPORT 200,000 IN STATE OUT OF WORK AT THIS TIME

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau. Washington—Two hundred thousand people entirely without employment in Wisconsin is the message of Wisconsin's governor to the senate. This figure was wired Senator Bingham of Connecticut in reply to his request for starvation and unemployment statistics to be used in a speech today regarding the $120,000,000 emergency road construction bill which has already passed the house and of which Wisconsin's share is estimated at $2,922,438. Pinchot of Pennsylvania was the only governor to admit starvation within his state.

The prints are important for their gay, springtime air and their adaptability to almost any occasion. The jacket frock is a two-in-one costume. It looks so different when the jacket is not worn. And every woman wants at least one simple plain colored crepe frock that gets its effect of elegance from its clever styling.
